ANNE PLEADS FOR HER BABY

'Name Your Own Terms,' Is Plea of Lindberghs

Hopewell, N. J., March 4 (INS) — Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh, speaking as a mother, and the baby's father pleaded today in the following open letter to the kidnapers of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., to return her child:

"Mrs. Lindbergh and I desire to make personal contact with the kidnapers of our child. Our only interest is in his immediate and safe return. We feel certain that the kidnapers will realize that this interest is strong enough to justify them in having complete confidence and trust in any promise that we may make in connection with his return. We urge those who have the child to send any representatives that they desire to meet a representative of ours who will be suitable to them at any time and at any place they may designate.

"If this is accepted we promise that we will keep whatever arrangements that may be made by their representative and ours strictly confidential, and we further pledge ourselves that we will not try to injure in any way those connected with return of the child."

The Lindbergh Child
This Nation's Disgrace
New Kidnaping Laws
More Fighting to Come

—By Arthur Brisbane—

WHEN THIS WAS written, no news had come concerning the Lindbergh child. Clues and alleged information had proved worthless.

Doubtless the abductors, in view of the nation-wide hue and cry, fear the baby could not be returned without danger to THEMSELVES.

Those that took the child are, evidently, men of some intelligence, as shown by precautions taken to prevent identification. They must KNOW that Col. Lindbergh would not deceive them, would not give his word and break it.

His only desire is to get back his child, and end the dreadful suffering of his unhappy wife. Nothing else is in his mind, no feeling of revenge, nothing but a desire to recover the child, pay the sum demanded, and let those that receive it go in peace.

This writer, and this newspaper, can assure the kidnapers, most solemnly, that, without any fear or suspicion, they may communicate with Col. Lindbergh, put themselves in his hands, with the certainty that he will deal fairly with them, pay them the ransom upon recovery of his child, and never pursue them, or GIVE TO ANYBODY INFORMATION THAT COULD POSSIBLY LEAD TO THEIR ARREST.

To return the child now, taking the $50,000, means for the kidnapers safety and wealth. To delay, with the child in delicate health, would make future detection and punishment ABSOLUTELY CERTAIN.

It would be simple for the kidnapers to send word to Col. Lindbergh to go to a certain place, there to find written instructions, and proceed immediately, in accordance with the instructions, to some other spot, where the baby would be delivered on payment of the ransom, with the further stipulation that Col. Lindbergh should remain with the child, on the spot where it was delivered, long enough to give the kidnapers abundance of time to escape.

To return the child, receive the money, and, with it, safety, would not be difficult now.

To delay means danger for the child, and certain punishment for those that abducted it.

In England, kidnaping is almost unknown, and is not a firmly established, profitable "racket," as in this country of prohibition, racketeering, bootlegging and lawlessness.

The London Daily News sees in the Lindbergh kidnaping "the most open challenge to civilized government that has ever been ventured."

This country is disgraced by its lawlessness, its supine submission to the rule of criminals, gangsters, racketeers of all kinds.

You might think that we were a nation of idiots to see our government busying itself with the affairs and needs of other countries, while showing not the faintest ability to suppress crime at home.

There is no nation on the earth, calling itself even half civilized, in which there is not better, more efficient internal government, with greater safety for the citizen's life and property than in this country.

It is proposed in Congress that kidnaping be made "a federal crime," and that death be made the penalty.

No punishment, not even the most horrible torture that the ancients inflicted, could inflict upon a kidnaper the suffering that he inflicts on the mother and father of a child.

And there is no doubt that kidnaping should be made a crime against the laws of the nation. It is a direct attack on the Constitution. It deprives a human being of liberty and often of life, taking away his freedom without "due process of law."

It is an interstate crime, as almost invariably the criminals pass from one state to another.

As to the death penalty, that might prove to be more dangerous for those kidnaped than for the kidnapers.

In eight of the 48 states, death is now the legal penalty for kidnaping. In New Jersey, kidnaping can be punished with life imprisonment, or a minimum of five years, at the discretion of the judge.

It is important that kidnaping should be made a federal crime, because of the persistence with which the Department of Justice follows criminals, as shown on counterfeiting cases.

Chinese and Japanese have stopped firing at Shanghai, pending a truce.

China says the Japanese demand is "absolutely unacceptable," and therefore the fighting will soon start again. It certainly will unless the Japanese get what they want.

BISHOP SAYS LOCAL LEAD 'LOOKS GOOD'

BULLETIN

Dist. Atty. Bishop of Middlesex County said today that Chief Damery's information regarding the Lindbergh kidnaping "looked good," and that he was conducting an investigation.

"There may be a break in the case tonight," he told newspapermen, revealing that he had twice conferred with Damery.

Police Chief Thomas Damery of Somerville today gave New Jersey authorities the name of a man he suspects may be involved in the Lindbergh kidnaping.

His action followed several hours of investigation on secret information and a conference with Supt. Crowley of Boston and Police Chief Joseph A. Gerk of St. Louis, who is visiting here.

"Early this morning I talked with a man, a reputable, reliable citizen of this ciay," said Chief Davery. "He gave me information as to the identity of the kidnaper and related certain circumstances which impressed me as being valuable.

"I was so much impressed that I went to Boston and met Supt. Crowley and Chief Gerk. They agreed the information should be relayed at once to Hopewell.

"The man who gave me the information got it from outside the state. He named the man and gave details which may tie him up with the crime.

"Further activity will be outside the state. I know the previous whereabouts of the man but not where he is now."

3 Freed in Fatal Bill Collection

Findings of "no probable cause" were made today in Roxbury Court in the cases of three men arrested on charges arising from the death of Mrs. Almina Anderson, 65, of Hemenway st., Back Bay, who collapsed while urging two bill collectors to leave.

One of the collectors, Orville Ellsworth, 31, of Austin st., Cambridge, was found guilty of assuming to be a constable, and the case was put over to March 9 for disposition.

Ellsworth and John J. Sheehan of Wilmington ave., Dorchester, the other collector, were released on a manslaughter charge.

Ellsworth and Robert Goodman, who ran the collection agency, were released on a charge of conspiracy.

"I came home and found mother crying," testified Ruth Anderson. "The two men had a note and a mortgage on the furniture, signed by my brother, Roy. Mother collapsed while they were there and died soon after they left."

$300,000 LOAN TO AID CHELSEA

Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea wired from New York to his secretary today that he had succeeded in obtaining a loan of $300,000 at 6 per cent from the Manufacturers Trust Co. of New York.

This means, according to his office staff, that money now in the city treasury can be released and that 600 city employes will receive part of their long overdue pay.

Trenton, N. J., March 4 (AP) —Gov. A. Harry Moore today sent a telegram to President Hoover inviting him to send a representative to a conference on the Lindbergh kidnap case in the Governor's office tomorrow.

The telegram read:

"Will you kindly send representative Department of Justice to attend conference at my office in Trenton tomorrow at 11 o'clock of police officials of leading American cities covering co-ordinated efforts to apprehend abductors of Lindbergh baby?"

The following telegram was sent to the mayors of Newark, Jersey City, Buffalo, Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Philadelphia, New York and Boston:

IMMUNITY PLEDGED IN LINDYS' NEW APPEAL; NURSE IS GRILLED

Hopewell, N. J., March 4 (INS)—An open letter to the kidnapers of their son was addressed to them today by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife, pleading a father's and mother's love to return their child.

The appeal is seen as the one chance to find the child. Every clue to date has proved of no value.

The appeal assures the criminals that entire confidence might be placed "in any promise we may make."

The appeal, made jointly by the colonel and his wife, was issued through the office of Gov. A. Harry Moore. It was given to the press in the hope the kidnapers would read it and immediately open negotiations for return of the baby.

The appeal was typewritten at the Lindbergh home, signed "Colonel Lindbergh and Anne Lindbergh," and brought by hand to the governor's office, where it was given to the press by John Toohey, the governor's secretary.

BETTY GOW IS GRILLED

Betty Gow, the handsome young nurse of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, was subjected to lengthy examination by police at the Lindbergh home today.

It was learned police questioned Miss Gow at length last night and started again early this morning.

No statement was issued as to the nature of the questioning or as to what police hoped to develop by their protracted examination.

It was Miss Gow who discovered the kidnaping when she went into the Lindbergh nursery at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday night. She had put the baby to bed at 7:30.

FINDS ONE SHUTTER WARPED

When the baby, who had been ill with a cold, was put to bed Mrs. Lindbergh started to follow the usual procedure of opening the nursery windows and closing and fastening the wooden shutters.

She found, however, that one of the shutters was so warped that it would not close. This shutter was therefore left open and through that unguarded window the kidnaper climbed to steal the child.

Miss Gow, a pretty, black-haired girl with a smiling face and the springy step of an athlete, was selected for the position by Elizabeth Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's sister.

Miss Morrow is an educational expert who runs a school of her own in Englewood and she spent considerable time in choosing the person she thought best suited for her nephew.

Miss Gow probably has seen much more of the baby than has its mother, because of Mrs. Lindbergh's many absences from home with her flying husband. The child was said to be very fond of her. The young woman was considered by the Lindberghs almost as a member of the family instead of as a servant.

Since the baby was kindaped she has been Mrs. Lindbergh's constant companion.

DEAL DIRECT WITH FAMILY

The issuance of the appeal by the Lindberghs was the most striking development in the case since Baby Lindbergh was kidnaped last Tuesday night from his nursery crib. It was seen as clearing the path to the Lindberghs for the kidnapers.

It served to quiet any possible fears that the kidnapers might have felt that communication was beset with danger.

LINDBERGHS OFFER IMMUNITY, RANSOM FOR RETURN OF BABY

THOUSANDS OF 'CLUES' FAIL TO LAND KIDNAPERS

It virtually meant that the police had agreed to stand aside for the sake of the child.

It meant that future dealings for the recovery of the baby were simply a matter between the Lindberghs—party of the first part—and the kidnapers—party of the second part.

With the forces of the law swept off the stage and the Lindberghs made accessible to any offer that the kidnapers had to offer, the long, long awaited word from them was expected some time today or tomorrow.

This period also should coincide with the information contained in the ransom letter left by the kidnapers in the nursery. This ransom note was said to have contained a suggestion that a communication would be received by the parents several days after the child was taken away.

Reports that Col. Linbergh already had deposited $50,000 in small bills in Newark or Englewood in readiness to pay as ransom for the baby's return were officially denied.

GOW GIRL WORKED IN DETROIT

Detroit, Mich., March 4 (AP)—Police said today that a Betty M. Gow, who gave New Jersey references and apparently had relatives in that state, held several positions as a maid in Detroit in 1930. At one of her positions the woman was listed as a former nursemaid.

The name of the nurse for the Lindbergh baby is Betty Gow.

On the records of the Whittier Hotel, where she workd for several months, the woman was described as having been born in Scotland; age, 26; height, 5 feet, 2 inches; weight, 120 pounds; hair, brown; complexion, dark.

It was pointed out that the Lindberghs' appeal to the kidnapers today clearly showed no negotiations were yet under way and that no definite demand for specific ransom so far had been made.

State police revealed today that a second anonymous telephone call to the Lindbergh home shortly after midnight this morning asked whether immunity would be granted to the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby.

The early morning telephone call was the second anonymous message reported received by telephone at the Lindbergh home asking for immunity. A person named Medina, of Long Branch, who was reported to have made a previous call, was questioned by police and released.

The call was disclosed by Capt. J. J. Lamb, of the New Jersey state police, stationed at the Lindbergh home.

CONFIRM IMMUNITY

The police intercepted the call and immediately made an effort to trace its source.

Asked whether Lindbergh would grant ransom, Lamb answered, "Yes."

"I will give any amount to get my child back safely," Lindbergh cried in desperation today when asked if he would give more than the $50,000 demanded.

Another night of following false clues left Lindbergh and the men in charge of the investigation fairly well convinced that the only way to get the child back was by making terms with the kidnapers.

Captain Lamb admitted that every clue has turned out to be false and that the only present lead that looked at all promising was a Philadelphia angle which was being thoroughly investigated.

Three long nights and part of a day have passed since 20-month-old Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., was stolen from his nursery crib in his teddy-bear sleeping suit.

Since then, the hopes of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, the distracted father, and the tortured mother, soon to become a mother again, have risen and fallen, like sweet and bitter heart beats.

AGAINST A STONE WALL

A thousand clues have proved futile.

Authorities admit they are "up against a stone wall."

The Lindberghs are anxious—eager—pleadingly anxious—to pay the ransom sum demanded by the baby stealers.

But how—when—where?

They have had no positive word from the kidnapers—or at least among the thousands of notes, letters and communications received they are unable to tell the spurious ones from the one letter they are waiting for.

The famous aviator-father wears his habitual mask of calmness—but underneath he is worried to distraction today.

The condition of Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh is that of any mother whose only babe has been taken from her.

The immunity call, was traced to Long Branch, N. J.

Police motorcycles and squad cars sped to the scene of the telephone call.

Another crank communication?

The answer to the radio appeal to the kidnapers to communicate with him broadcast over the nation at the authorization of Col. Lindbergh?

THOUSAND CLUES FAIL

The hours to come will tell the story as the father and mother of the baby who was too famous waited for fate to turn kind.

They have been waiting—with the nation—since Tuesday night when baby Lindbergh was slipped from his nursery crib into the unknown.

They have been waiting for three-score hours. A thousand clues have buoyed them up until their proven falseness has turned their hearts to lead.

Letters, threats, phone calls and telegrams, all pretending to be highly important—some pretending indeed to be from the kidnapers themselves—were subjected to thorough scrutiny; yet the essence of the situation early today, as epitomized by the authorities, was:

"WE DO NOT KNOW who kidnaped Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., from his crib Tuesday night.

"WE HAVE NO KNOWLEDGE of his present whereabouts.

"WE DO NOT KNOW even if he be alove or dead.

"AND THERE HAS BEEN NO OFFER of the baby's return made to Col. or Mrs. Lindbergh."

Those were the essential facts. Behind the negative announcements, however, were elaborate maneuverings by the multitudinous forces of law seeking solution of the most astonishing abduction Amrica ever has known.

PROBE SPREADS FAR

The investigatorial arms extended even into the Midwest—to Detroit, to Chicago and to another Midwestern point the name of which was not revealed, but which Newark police (who were running down this particular clue) looked upon as of major importance.

There were unexplained phone conversations between the investigators here and police officials in numerous cities. Some, it was learned, concerned specific police characters. Others involved clues that might lead directly to the missing child himself.

Most significant of the stalemate in which the searchers for the 20-month-old child found themselves was the nationwide appeal broadcast last night by direct authorization of the transatlantic flier himself. It said:

> "Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh not only wish but hope that whoever is in possession of the child will make every effort to communicate with them."

This, by inference, testified that although 48 hours had passed since the little Lindbergh was lifted from his crib at the lonesome estate of his parents in the Sourland Hill country, the abductors had not communicated with the distraught parents. It was apparent to officers that the kidnapers were concentrating at present on making safe their hideaway before entering into negotiations for ransom.

BARE DETAILS OF NOTE

There have been numerous notes that pretended to be from the kidnapers. Only one, however, is regarded as genuine. That is the note found on the sill of the nursery window through which the child was taken. Partial contents of this note were revealed by John J. Tooney, secretary to Gov. Moore, who declared:

> "The first ransom note left in the room on the night of the kidnaping asked for $50,000.
>
> "It specified that the bills were to be in denominations of one, two, five, ten and twenty dollars. It said that the baby would be well taken care of.
>
> "It was signed with three pen pricks in the paper.
>
> "There were no directions as to how the ransom should be paid and there was no time limit specified."

The note apparently failed to outline what steps would be necessary to open negotiations for the child's return and for payment of the ransom—generally understood to be $50,000.

A report last night that a second and a third note received by the Lindberghs were signed by three pin points in a triangle was denied at the office of Governor Harry Moore at Trenton, where developments are officially communicated to a small army of newsmen. The pin point signature was said to have been employed on the original note.

MRS. LINDBERGH THREATENED

Suggestions that the police cease the hunt, and that thus the kidnapers might deal with the Lindberghs without fear of arrest were immediately turned down by the flier. He said he wanted the police search to continue, and he expressed satisfaction with the manner in which it has been conducted.

At the same time Col. Lindbergh is anxious to treat directly with the kidnapers and has indicated willingness to meet their ransom demands and their terms for the baby's return.

Some of the voluminous mail received has been of a threatening nature, hinting in one case that Mrs. Lindbergh—the former Anne Morrow—would be killed, and that the flier, too, was marked for death. Neither the Lindberghs nor the police gave these threats any serious thought.

There was one note which said "the baby will die." There were others which obviously were the work of cranks or crooks seeking money.

The contents of note received in the mails yesterday were guarded as closely as the first message of the kidnapers found pinned to the windowsill of the nursery when the kidnaping was first discovered. It was said that there was "some similiarity in the handwriting" on the two messages.

Police today made it plain that they are sifting all clues thoroughly. When asked whether Marie Cummings, the baby's first nurse, had been eliminated from persons being questioned, the police said, "No one has been eliminated."

PARENTS DESCRIBE BABY

Here is a complete description of the kidnaped baby, including distinguishing characteristics, as released by his parents, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh:

He has a large dimple in his chin.

He is cutting teeth.

He has begun to toddle, and his conversation is limited to such phrases as, "Wanna get down," "Big bow-wow," etc.

He has blue eyes and light, curly hair.

His head seems unusually large.

Although he strongly resembles pictures of his father, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, he has his mother's features.

He dislikes strangers and whimpers and draws away from them if they attempt to fondle him.

When near a telephone he seizes the receiver and attempts to talk into it.

He's 20 months old, two feet nine inches tall and weighs 30 pounds.

At the time he was stolen he wore a white balbriggan one-piece sleeping suit, size two, with long sleeves and stitched feet. It had six pearl buttons down the front and three across the back.

'YOU AND I' ARE TO BLAME—ELSIE ROBINSON

(Editor's Note: Elsie Robinson, noted feature writer, whose column "Listen, World" is known to millions of newspaper readers, blames our hectic, modern civilization in large measure for the tragedy that has befallen Charles and Anne Lindbergh.)

By ELSIE ROBINSON

(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service)

Washington, March 4 (INS)—He had a dread of people.

Seems queer—doesn't it?—to say a thing like that about Lindbergh.

Endless skies above, snarling water beneath — he hadn't feared those. Loneliness of the untracked night, menace of the unmapped shore—these hadn't daunted him. But, with the baby, there came that dread of people.

Right from the first he felt that way. Didn't even want to show his picture. Wanted to get him away.

Away from headlines and spotlights—from curious eyes and gabbling tongues and mauling hands. Away, most of all, from the pressure of alien thoughts.

People said he was "hipped" on the subject. Tired to kid him. Chuckled and said he'd get over it. But Lindbergh didn't get over it. He grew stubborn about it—almost grim.

"I want him to grow away from it," he said, "I don't want the world to get at him—"

He felt there was something wrong with the world. Rain and wind, fog and sleet, these were natural things—clean dangers. But there was a danger in the world that wasn't clean. There was a "break up" somewhere in life—control wires snapping—he couldn't put it in words. There was only that stubborn fury when anyone tried to shake him. Somehow he was going to get his baby away from it all.

So they found a place, those three, in the heart of the woods on the top of a hill—a place away from the world. A place where they could be safe!

Catches at your heart — desn't it? The thought of those three children, going away like that—seeking peace. Maybe you envied them. Perhaps you, too, have felt the same fear that Lindbergh felt of "something wrong with the world" — the same vague, puzzled disgust.

Whatever you felt then, there's only one thing you're feeling now—a sob in your throat—prayer like a scream in your heart. For, like a great bat flopping through the night, the "something wrong" they fled from has followed those three—forced its way through their barred gate, fumbled its way up their guarded wall and —struck! And baby Lindy is gone!

Midnight as I write this. One — two — three —. The third night since he went. For hours we've been waiting here—listening while reports came in—listening while they failed. Sitting here waiting. Thinking as we sit—

This thing—this incredible, fiendish thing—it's more than the story of those three. It's the story of something else—something even bigger—it's the story of all decency, fighting for its life! This isn't one kidnaper—nor a kidnaping racket. This is hell broken loose—the hell we've let form out of our own laxness and laziness and lawlessness—out of our own playing with fire.

And now our eyes are opened—at last. With the tears of that heart broken mother and the cries of that tiny, helpless little boy, as the price!

Where is Lindy's baby tonight? God knows.

And he also knows something else. He knows that wherever he is—you and I helped put him there.

THE CLUES

Hopewell, N. J., March 4 (AP)—The Lindbergh kidnaping has turned the United States into a nation of amateur detectives, all eager to help, but the promising leads and clues turned up to date are few.

Among them are:

THE LADDER

A newly built pine affair, in three sections. Two sections were built by an expert carpenter, the third is a poor job. The middle section is split and broken, perhaps by the miscreant who carried the baby down from the nursery. The fingerprints: Two vague smudges on nursery window pane. Perhaps too vague to help.

THE FOOTPRINTS

Seemingly made by stockinged feet. One set of prints was so small they at first were thought those of a woman, later adjudged those of a man.

THE NOTES

Three out of nearly 2000 communications are taken most seriously. The first ransom demand, contents guarded from the public, was found in the nursery. The second, postmarked New York and asking $50,000, said, "We will forward instructions," and warned Col. Lindbergh not to "open your trap to a living soul." A third note, received yesterday, was kept secret. Its handwriting was similar to first.

Among the stacks of other communications, one postmarked South Orange, said, "Baby will die."

TIME OF CRIME

Kidnapers, apparently with intimate knowledge of Lindberghs' movements, timed visit perfectly when baby was unguarded for short period. Lindberghs, breaking a custom, had remained at Hopewell two days longer than expected. How did the kidnapers know?

Cardinal Orders Prayer for Baby

New York, March 4 (AP)—Cardinal Hayes, returning today from a month's visit to Nassau, the Bahamas, announced that prayers will be offered Sunday in St. Patrick's Cathedral for the safe return of the kidnaped son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

"Kidnaping is a most fiendish and deplorable crime because it strikes at the very home itself," the Cardinal said.

"A man may steal your goods and they may be replaced, but when he steals your child it is as serious a crime as can be committed."

Offers $9000 to Lash Kidnapers

Trenton, N. J., March 4—(INS)—Among telegrams received at Gov. Moore's office today was one from an Ohio woman offering to pay $9000 for the privilege of punishing Baby Lindbergh's kidnapers, supposing two men and a woman involved.

The telegram, signed Opha Jackson, Springfield, O.," reads:

"I would like to apply ten lashes to the back of each one of the kidnapers. I will contribute to a fund for the unemployed in your community $100 for each last and for the privilege of watching Col. Lindbergh apply 20 lashes I will contribute $100 a lash."

SCOTLAND YARD ASKED TO AID

London, March 4 (AP)—Scotland Yard received a request today from the American police for information concerning two persons who formerly lived in Great Britain and are now in the United States. The request was understood to be in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Police in New Jersey seeking the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby said they had asked for information in England regarding the nursemaid, the butler and the housekeeper at the Lindbergh home in Hopewell, N. J.

BOY FRIEND OF BETTY SOUGHT

Englewood, N. J., March 4 (AP)—Police revealed today that they had been attempting for the past 24 hours to locate Henry (Red) Johnson, a friend of Miss Betty Gow, who was nurse for the kidnaped Lindbergh child.

The police explained that no charges have been made and that no suspicion attaches to Johnson, but said the search for him was part of the routine effort to check every angle of the case.

Johnson, they said, communicated with Miss Gow by telephone at 9 o'clock Monday night, she being at the Lindbergh home. He is described as a sailor who has been employed on the yacht of a prominent New Yorker.

The proprietor of the boarding house in which Johnson lived said his room had not been given up, but Johnson did not return to it last night.

Gen. Harbord Pleads for "Spending" Campaign

New York, March 4—The only way to get out of this business crisis is to "spend out way out of it," Maj.-Gen. James G. Harbord declared at a dinner sponsored by the New York League of Business and Professional Women's clubs.

General Harbord

General Harbord urged the nation to stand back of the government's prosperity bond issue as a method of releasing hoarded money and restoring prosperity.

Just one additional dollar spent each week by every family in the country, he said, would improve conditions and $5 would practically wipe out unemployment.

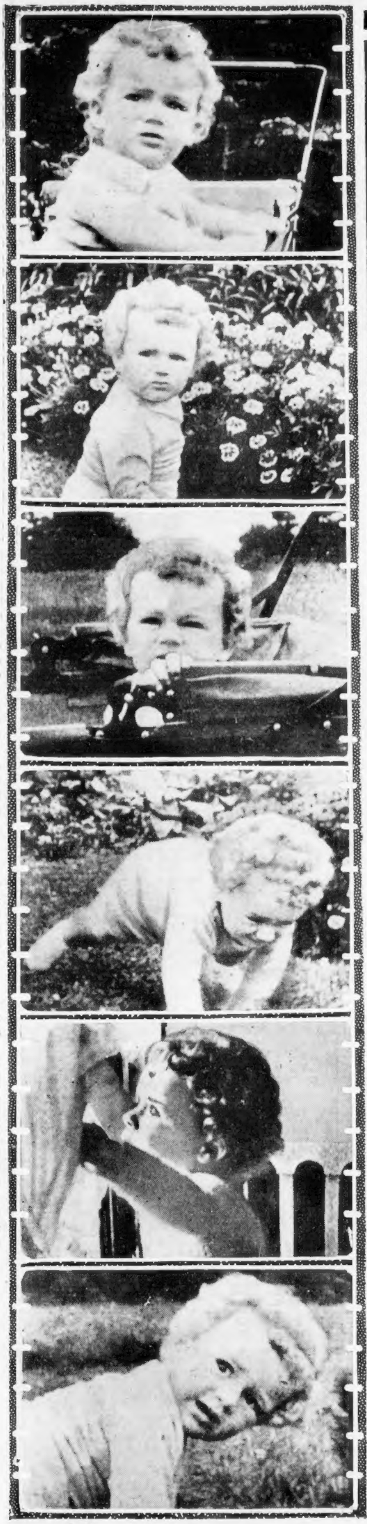
BABY'S FATE A MYSTERY AS THOUSANDS FEVERISHLY HUNT

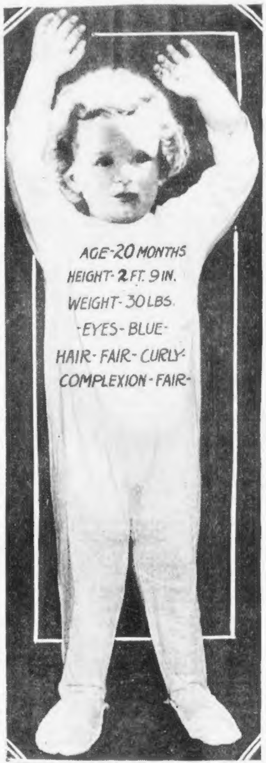


PATHE NEWS PHOTOS.

Remarkable closeup photos of Baby Lindbergh, taken on the estate of his famous parents, long before the shadow of the tragedy that has struck the boy and his family and caused roars of horrified indignation from the whole civilized world. These photos were made by a Pathe News cameraman and were released to International Newsreel on Col. Lindbergh's order to assist in the greatest man hunt the world has even seen. The photos, showing him in his carriage, toddling on the lawn with backgrounds of beautiful flowers, also present accurate poses of what the baby really looks like in the flesh.

This hitherto unpublished photo of Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., shows the famous son of famous parents, as he appeared at the little birthday party that he attended to celebrate his first birthday anniversary, June 22, 1931. A single candle decorated the birthday cake which seems to have caught the fancy of the little guest of honor. (I. N. R. photo.)

New Jersey state troopers combing the countryside prosecute search under culvert at Hopewell, N. J., for clue to Col. Lindbergh's kidnaped son. This culvert is not far from the Lindbergh home. Every nook and corner in the isolated sector that surrounds the Lindy estate is being combed by police and volunteers for slightest clue. (Wide World photos.)



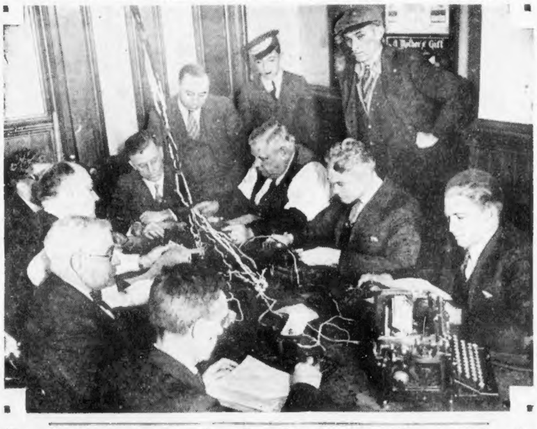
This composite photograph shows how baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was all dressed up in a one-piece sleeping suit, size two, when he was taken by kidnapers Tuesday evening.

It provides also a detailed description of the missing baby so that the people of Greater Boston can do their part in the Nation-wide search for the famous baby whose heart-broken parents eagerly await news of him and of his safety.

Keep your eyes open for this boy. The kidnapers may be in your neighborhood. Notify the police at once should you have clue.

Members of New Jersey state troopers scour the woods surrounding the Lindbergh home at Hopewell in an effort to locate clues to the kidnaper or kidnapers of Baby Lindbergh. (International Newsreel photo.)

Betty Gow, nurse of Baby Lindbergh, who helped Mrs. Lindbergh put him to bed and afterward discovered the kidnaping, was put through a lengthy questioning today. She is shown here wheeling the boy on the Morrow estate in Maine



View inside the railroad station in Hopewell, N. J., which has been converted into a temporary telegraph wire room to send out to an anxious world all the news concerning developments in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping. Note the wires hastily strung up from the center of the table and the corps of busy operators working their keys as they send out their dot and dash bulletins. (Wide World photo.)

ALL CLUES FAIL IN KIDNAPING OF OHIO BOY

Washington, March 4 (AP)—The federal government today placed its forces in the hunt for the kidnapers of 11-year-old James Dejute, Jr., stolen near his home in Niles, Ohio.

Niles, O., March 4 (AP)—Like the Lindberghs, the family of James Dejute, Jr., 11, kidnaped three days ago, could only wait and hope for his safe return today.

One by one various clues failed to develop into anything tangible to trace the two men who seized the boy as he was on his way to school Wednesday.

A suspect arrested at Youngstown was released today after he could not be identified as one of the kidnapers. Clues in Southern Ohio and Jamestown, Pa., also failed.

Dejute, Sr., a wealthy contractor, held to his belief that the abductors wanted money and he waited hourly for a ransom note, but none has been received.

Authorities continued to work on the theory, in the absence of ransom demands, that the abduction was an act of vengeance. Dejute and his brother, A. W. Dejute, denied police reports a blackhand threat had been made several years ago.

Former Treasurer L. M. Shaw Dying

Washington, March 4 (AP)—Leslie M. Shaw, 83, secretary of the Treasury under President Theodore Roosevelt, is critically ill with pneumonia at the Wardman Park Hotel.

His daughter, Mrs. John McMillin of New York, said today bronchial complications seemed to be making him "sink very rapidly." Mrs. Shaw is with him.

BURNS SAYS LINDY CAN ONLY PAY, WAIT

◆◆◆

Famous Detective Sees Early Solution to Kidnaping Case

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service)

Sarasota, Fla., March 4 (INS)—William J. Burns, famous detective and former chief of the United States Secret Service, today predicted an early solution of the Lindbergh baby kidnaping mystery and branded the crime as one of the "most despicable" in the history of the country.

"There is nothing for the Lindberghs to do but pay the ransom and get the baby back," said Burns, in expressing solicitude for the safety of the child. "If the baby is restored unharmed the American people might almost forgive the kidnapers but if anything happens to this celebrated child punishment of the crime will be speedy and certain."

W. J. Burns

Burns, intervied at his winter home at Starmands Key, overlooking Sarasota Bay, declined to discuss the theories developed in the Lindbergh case. He is more than 1000 miles from the scene, for one thing, and was reluctant to be quoted on the specific aspects of the case. He was prevailed upon, however, to make some generalities.

URGED DEATH PENALTY

He was emphatic in advocating the passage of state and national laws making kidnaping a capital offense, punishable by death or by life imprisonment. He expressed the hope that the Lindbergh kidnaping would spur Congress to take action along this line.

In generalizing on the Lindbergh kidnaping, in view of his long experience in crime detection, Burns made these observations:

1. That drug addicts are the perpetrators of many of the kidnapings now sweeping the nation.
2. That in kidnapings, such as the Lindbergh case, rewards should not be offered. It suggests punishment and might cause the kidnapers to become panicy, to the detriment of the child.
3. That the motive for the crime undoubtedly was money, there being nothing to indicate that revenge or fanaticism entered into it.

"Kidnaping is the most dastardly crime on the calendar," Burns said. "It is even worse than murder. It causes more anguish to parents and loved ones than anything else.

KIDNAPING INCREASES

"I have advocated for years making the crime of kidnaping a capital offense punishable by death. There was a bill before Congress calling for such punishment but nothing was done about it.

"Several thousand persons have been kidnaped in this country in the last few years. Kidnapings were infrequent up to about four years ago. There also has been a lot of blackmailing recently on the threat of kidnaping.

"The police and the public do not hear of ten per cent of the extortions. In this country we have no laws to suppress the names of those victimized. In England, however, they do not identify the extortion victims, the newspapers merely referring to them as Mr. or Mrs. X. Our policy of publishing the names of persons handicaps prosecutions."

Asked why there have been so many kidnapings in recent years, Burns replied:

"The modern gangster and drug addict is the answer. In former years burglaries were common. But times have changed. Crooks nowadays find extortion and kidnaping easier. Those who commit the robberies today are not the experienced crooks but youths from 18 to 24 years of age. They are "shot" with dope. Often they kill their victims while under the influence of the drug.

DRUGS ARE BLAMED.

"This country is taking active steps toward restricting the sale of narcotics. We are making some progress in this respect at Geneva. But it is slow. Stopping the sale of drugs would be a great crime deterrent. Years ago crooks would not think of killing their victims. Today the gangster holds human life cheaply.

"I hope the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby will result in a law making such a crime punishable by death. This would surely cut down the number of kidnapings."

Burns would not be surprised if it developed the Lindbergh kidnaping was thought out well in advance and carefully planned. He did not put much credence in the report that the kidnapers inquired the location of the Lindbergh home.

He said the government should give all the help possible, pointing out that considerable canvassing might be necessary in combing New Jersey, New York and vicinity for the kidnapers. Department of justice men, he thought, could give important assistance to the state and local police.

British Call Case 'Affront to U. S.'

London, March 4 (AP)—News of the progress of the hunt for the kidnapers of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., continued to hold first place in London newspapers today and in street corner conversations.

The Morning Post referred to the crime as "an affront to the American nation."

"What has happened in New Jersey, however," the Post editorial said, "might conceivably have happened here. In the fact of recent audacities of motor bandits in this country it is hardly possible to point the finger of reproach at our American friends."

startled parents downstairs that all was not well in the room where their little son had been left sleeping.

A few moments later, tears streaming down her cheeks, eyes wild with stark terror, she faced them at the foot of the stairs and choked out somehow the news that was to shock the world.

HER AGONIZED STORY.

No one remembers just what she said or what they said. Just a few breathless monosyllables wrung from her in convulsive gasps:

"The baby—is—gone!"

Since then she had said little. Or, rather, she has not talked at all except when the detectives, tracing and retracing their clues to the kidnaping, have asked her to tell and retell her brief story.

Today Mrs. Lindbergh, buoyed by new hope that her son is alive and will soon be returned to her, sought to relax from her long vigil. After a night of fitful sleep, she donned a white sports suit and a jaunty fur-trimmed black and white sweater and went for a short stroll about the grounds of the estate. And she smiled bravely at the stream of persons, arriving and departing from the house, who greeted her.

But Betty Gow did not leave the house, averted her tragic glance when members of the family sought to talk to her.

LIFE LEFT EMPTY.

In the midst of a bee-hive of activity that fills the house and centers about the solution of the kidnaping, she has nothing at all to do.

The Lindberghs have their long conferences with the police to relieve somewhat the strain of uncertainty the anguish that has their hearts in its grip.

The servants have their hands full, with a house crowded with the most unusual guests they have ever known.

But Betty has neither baby meals to prepare nor a little loved charge to bathe and dress and exercise and put to bed.

The baby who furnished her whole occupation is gone as suddenly and as unbelievably as a frail bark swallowed up by the sea.

Teacher Sentenced for Handbag Theft

Carlo Bux, of Huntington ave., a teacher of Italian, was sentenced to a year today by Judge Good, in municipal court, for snatching a hand bag.

A short time ago, Bux was found guilty of a simular charge, and is being held in bail totalling $4000 as a result of appeal.

Mrs. Anna Wheeler, of Beauford rd., Jamaica Plain, complained that he stole her pocketbook.

Twisted Folk See Fun in Lindbergh Drama

Hopewell, N. J., March 4 (AP)—Impossible as it may seem, some twisted folk find fun in the Lindbergh kidnaping. In the flood of letters received from all over the country at the Lindbergh home are some from "practical jokesters, folks with a pretty small sense of humor," says Inspector Henry Walsh.

GRANDMOTHER GUARDED

Englewood, N. J.—Policemen guarding the home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, the Lindbergh baby's grandmother, were equipped with riot guns. No explanation was offered.

JUST CAMERA MEN!

Pennington, N. J.—A waitress excited police by telling them three suspicious looking characters asked the way to the Lindbergh home on Washington's birthday. They turned out to be newspaper photographers.

BABY'S ONLY NURSE.

Trenton, N. J.—Betty Gow, the Lindbergh baby's nurse, is the only one the baby ever has had. She is a Scotch girl whose antecedents in Scotland were checked by the family, police said, and she was hired before the baby was born on the recommendation of Elizabeth Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's sister.

NOT VIOLATING LAW.

New York, March 4—A kidnaper is within the federal law when he uses the mails to send ansom messages.

"Odd as it seems, there is no fraud in that," said Chief Postal Inspector Charles Clarahan. "The kidnaping is illegal, but the communication of terms is not."

LAYS IT TO THRILLS.

Syracuse, N. Y., March 4—"Thrill criminals" and not extortionists kidnaped the Lindbergh baby, said Dr. Louis J. Bragman, psychiatrist.

"Thrill kidnapers are not the ordinary ransom beggars. They sometimes baffle the most intelligent detectives because they operate under the pressure of insanity."

CAN'T USE DEATH PENALTY.

New York, March 4—Even if New Jersey should pass a law prescribing the death penalty for kidnaping it would not apply to the Lindbergh case, says an article in the New York Law Journal. It would be an ex post facto law relating to acts already done and would be forbidden oy the Constitution.

LETTERS SWAMP OFFICE.

Trenton, N. J., March 4—A torrent of 2000 letters, many from cranks, has so hampered police that Superintendent Norman Schwarzkopf has appealed to Walter F. Brown, postmaster-General, to prosecute the authors when identified.

ASKS FOR PRAYERS

New York, March 4—Bishop William T. Manning has sent a letter to all churches in this Protestant Episcopal diocese, asking prayers for the safety of the Lindbergh baby "and for those who are guilty of this act, that their hearts may be softened

KNIGHTHOOD IN BLOOM AGAIN 'FOR ANNE'

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Correspondent

Hopewell, N. J., March 4 (INS)—A renaissance of chivalry has swept across the land with the calamitous disappearance of the Lindbergh infant.

Everywhere today men are ready to risk their lives to serve a gallant little lady who does not know how to whimper—Anne Morrow Lindbergh, the baby's mother. Her plight has called forth a knightly spirit of sacrifice in men, who, beneath their modernity, are as anxious to do valorous deeds as ever they were in olden days.

This is especially noticeable in the police who have massed their numbers to seek the abductors of the 20-months-old son of America's most idolized couple.

Day and night these men are on guard at the great white house here. They stand and talk with tense concern in their faces, or drive about on dusty roads doing routine tasks with unusual fervor.

Admiration for the boy who first flew the Atlantic is not the only motivating force within them. It is plain that the reserved meticulous young wife whose situation today is that of both a bereaved and expectant mother, has moved them.

"I'd give my right hand to bring that baby back to her," one stalwart state trooper was overheard to say today.

Another suggested a physician be kept in close touch with the house in case shock necessitated medical services suddenly. No doctor has been called for Mrs. Lindbergh.

At least three reporters confessed they had gone out on private searches of the vicinity since their arrival.

These are romantic attitudes of supposedly prosaic men, men who have dealt in crime and criminals for years without feeling the passion of personal interest.

But the Lindbergh kidnaping has the quality of high romance. It is an episode from a new and American version of "Graustark"—treason in high places—hearts stirred by sympathy for a princess in distress.

Anne Lindbergh, with her stoical calm, her determination to remain well for the sake of another baby as yet unborn, is a lady in distress whom any man must wish to rescue.

No one outside the family has seen Mrs. Lindbergh or Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, her mother, except Gov. A. Harry Moore, and he painted the picture of two tormented souls held calm in the grip of two powerful minds.

Mrs. Sheldon Yates of Englewood, sister of Mrs. Morrow, and Miss Elizabeth Morrow, sister of Mrs. Lindbergh, are guests at the Lindbergh estate now.

Betty Gow, the baby's nurse, and the wife of the butler, are the only other women in the house.

Committee Favors "Free" Philippines

Washington, March 4 (AP)—The House insular affairs committee today approved a bill intended to give the Philippine Islands complete independence in seven to nine years.

MORROW GIRL'S HOPES FADE AS TIME PASSES

By BERT FORD

Northampton, March 4—Robbed of the hopes that had buoyed her up during the last 24 hours, Constance Morrow, aunt of Baby Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr. was bitterly disappointed today over failure of the abductors to return her 20-months-old nephew to her sister and Col. Lindbergh, as had been predicted by newspaper dispatches from New Jersey.

Miss Morrow, who is 18 and a freshman at Smith College, has followed the newspaper accounts with feverish interest, as have her classmates and the entire college community. Her brother, Dwight, a junior at Amherst, has also kept posted on the latest developments by scanning press reports.

WATCH TELETYPE

Lieut. H. L. Avery, commanding the State police barracks on the outskirts of this town, has informed Miss Constance and her brother of the latest bulletins on the police teletype.

Dwight said today that he had not received any communication from his mother or the Lindbergh home for 48 hours.

"All I know about the case is what I have read in the newspapers. I hoped that the abductors would return little Charles today. My only hope is that the child will not suffer any neglect or ill-effects.

"Its nurse, Miss Betty Gow, has been in the employ of Col. Lindbergh and my sister Anne for more than a year. She is efficient and I know the baby's parents had the utmost confidence in her."

Dwight and Constance were interested in news that a letter had been sent by airmail from Boston to the Lindberghs purporting to designate where Baby Lindy could be found in New Jersey. News that the sender had no real knowledge of the affair caused them disappointment.

ROAD WATCH INCREASED

They were also interested in the police teletype flashes from Connecticut and Rhode Island that a suspicious automobile with a New York registration, bearing two men, a woman and an infant, had failed to heed orders to halt and had passed highway patrols at top speed.

Lieut. Avery, as a result of this information, increased his highway patrols in this region. Ordering every state trooper on duty to round up the car if sighted. The registration number is known to the police.

Lieut. Avery conferred again with Miss Morrow at Smith College today. The guard of state troopers was continued as Constance hurried to and from classes and attended to her other college duties. State Trooper Leo Latnam guarded her all day yesterday. Constance and her chums no longer consider the guard a novelty. But interest in the fate and whereabouts of the abducted infant remains at fever heat throughout the town.

Hoover's Budget Cut $114,000,000

Washington, March 4 (AP)—Chairman Byrns of the House appropriations committee told newspapermen today budget estimates for the coming fiscal year submitted by President Hoover in the first six big money bills have been reduced an average of nearly 6 per cent.

Autoist With Baby Held Up 8 Times

Cleveland, March 4 (AP)—It's a bad time to travel far from home with a baby in your automobile, unless you're prepared for delays by police. That is the conclusion of Albert Menzies of Saginaw, Mich., who with his wife and four small children, has been trying to drive from Boston, Mass., to Saginaw since Monday.

So intent have police and citizens been to watch for possible suspects in the Lindbergh kidnaping, the Menzies told Cleveland authorities last night he had been stopped and questioned eight times since he left Massachusetts.

Theft Suspect Held

Fred Hapenny of Myrtle st., Waltham, arraigned in Waltham District Court on a charge of larceny of $8 from Alice Crawford, was held for a hearing on March 5.

NEW LETTER TO LINDY PROBED

Fisherville, March 4 (AP)—Constable Thomas Hague is investigating a letter addressed to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh at Hopewell, N. J., mailed last night at the post office here. The letter was discovered by a clerk sorting the mail for the morning's dispatch.

The postmaster communicated with postal authorities at Worcester and then informed the police.

FRENZIED HUNT FOR BABY ALL OVER EAST

Police in every city in the East are exhausting hundreds of clues in the hunt for the Lindbergh baby.

The sleepless parents, authorizing a radio appeal to the kidnapers to get in touch with them, refuse to call off police. Here are reports from all sections of the country:

Card Mailed in Auburn, N. Y., Believed the Work of Cranks

Auburn, N. Y., March 4 (AP)—A postcard mailed from Auburn to Col. Lindbergh, purporting to come from the kidnapers of his son, was believed by authorities today to be the work of cranks.

Nevertheless, sharp watch was being kept througnout the countryside for possible traces of the kidnapers. The authorities also were trying to locate two poorly dressed men believed to have mailed the card yesterday.

It was addressed to "Charles A. Lindbergh, Hopewell, N. J.," and the message to the parents was "Baby taken good care of. Look for instructions Saturday. If police get too close look out."

Detroit Gangster Named Gow Sought for Quiz

Detroit, March 4 (AP)—Detroit police today worked on what New Jersey authorities thought might be a local angle of the Lindbergh kidnaping.

The investigation was started after a telephone conversation between Thomas J. Roma, a Newark, N. J., detective, and Inspector Frank Fraley of the Detroit police. Roma sought to establish the identity of a "Scotty Gow," believed to be a member of Detroit's once-powerful purple gang.

No such man is known to the police here and no such man ever has been connected with the purple gang. The only Gow known to the Detroit police is Alexander Gow, a former University of Michigan student, who fled to Canada after his arrest two years ago at Ann Arbor for bootlegging.

A large package, said to contain police photographs and fingerprints, was on its way to Newark today but the police refused to discuss its significance.

North Carolina Towns on Watch for Kidnap Car

Charlotte, N. C., March 4 (AP)—Acting on reports that suspicious characters had been seen heading southward through Richmond, authorities in several North Carolina communities early today began a close watch for the kidnapers.

Every available man was posted on highways leading into Durham about 3 a. m. Today when police in McKinney, Va., 130 miles away, telephoned that a car, suspected near Richmond yesterday of bearing the kidnapers, had passed through there at 1 a. m headed for Durham.

Mexican Officials Keep Close Watch Along Border

Mexico City, March 4 (AP)—The department of communications announced today that every train, automobile, airplane and steamship entering Mexico is being carefully checked by immigration, customs and army officials in an effort to apprehend the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby.

The orders were issued to all frontier points within ten hours after news of the kidnaping reached here, long before the kidnapers could have reached Mexico.

Chicago Police Follow Up 2 Possible Clues

Chicago, March 4 (AP)—The Chicago Tribune said today two potential angles of the Lindbergh kidnaping with ramifications in Detroit and Evanston, Ill., were developed following an exchange of messages between New Jersey police and the Chicago Detective Bureau.

The Tribune said the New Jersey police have sent a request to the bureau here for "any information relative to 'Scotty' Gow," reported member of the notorious Purple Gang of Detroit.

Hopewell, N. J., authorities have been advised by Chicago detectives, the paper related, of a Mary Rogers, who made an unsuccessful attempt to adopt a baby boy at "The Cradle," an Evanston home for children, in 1930, and who allegedly was an associate of Joseph Bossone, a reputed New Jersey kidnaping ring chieftain.

According to the Tribune, Bossone's home is supposed to be in Asbury Park, N. J., and he has relatives in Long Branch, N. J.

Lindbergh Baby Hunt Near Harvard Sq.

The Lindbergh baby search entered Cambridge today when a Harvard sq. taxi driver reported to police that he had directed a man and a girl who carried a baby to a hotel near the square. He thought the baby looked like the kidnaped child.

Sergt. William A. Curtin took a squad of officers into the section and inquiries were made at two hotels, but no trace of the trio was found.

New Letter Clue to Baby Found in Granville, O.

Granville, O., March 4 (INS)—A letter addressed to Col Charles A. Lindbergh and bearing the message, "Tell Ann not to be nervous—everything is okay—give us time," was found in the out-going mail at the Granville post office today.

The message was read by holding the letter up to the light.

Police also said that two empty milk bottles—one bearing a cap with the name of a Newark, N. J., dealer and the other with a cap bearing the name of a Johnstown, Pa., dealer—were found on the streets of Newark, O., a nearby city.

Regard it as plain duty of everyone to co-operate. I earnestly urge you to send a representative of your department best qualified to assist. (Signed) "A. Harry Moore, Governor of New Jersey."

Cabinet Discusses Lindbergh Case, but Takes No Action

Washington, March 4—The concern of the country for the safety of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was reflected at today's meeting of President Hoover and his cabinet. The kidnaping brought various expressions from government leaders in an informal discussion, but there was no suggestion of further action by the government to recover the child or apprehend his abductors.

Federal agencies already are aiding state authorities in the search.

The cabinet members agreed as one that every possible resource should be invoked to find the infant.

The meeting lasted an hour longer than usual. After Vice-President Curtis and others emerged, Atty. Gen. Mitchell remained with the President.

It was the attorney-general whom Mr. Hoover called in on the day the press first carried the startling news of the kidnaping. A while later justice department, prohibition bureau, immigration and customs agents were ordered to help hunt for the child.

Word that Gov. Moore of New Jersey was wiring a request for the President to send a representative to his office tomorrow, to attend a conference on the Lindbergh case, reached the White House from newspaper sources ahead of the telegram.

The President later received and referred to the Department of Justice the message from Governor Moore, inviting Federal participation [illegible] conference tomorrow concerning [illegible] kidnaping.

White House officials transmitted the telegram to the attorney general without comment.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, will represent the federal government at the conference.

FAMOUS KIDNAPING MYSTERIES ✣ By Win Brooks ✣ The Orthwein Case

(This is the third complete story in a series about famous kidnaping cases in which interest has been reawakened by the abduction of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

One of the strangest stories of child kidnaping—a 20-hour sensation throughout the country—that of the abduction of Adolphus Busch Orthwein, near St. Louis, on New Year's Eve, 1930.

It has a happy ending but one of many mysterious phases that probably never will be clarified in the public mind.

If some reports are true, the staggering sum of $143,000 was paid as ransom to restore Adolphus, unharmed, to the arms of his parents.

FAMILY WEALTHY

That, as ransoms go, is big money in any language, yet big money was a language that Adolphus' family could speak fluently, because they had, and have, one of the largest fortunes ever amassed in the Southwest.

Adolphus is the son of P. J. Orthwein, St. Louis advertising man, the grandson of Augustus A. Busch, president of the Anheuser-Busch, Inc., and the great-grandson of the late Adolphus Busch, who made beer and money by the vat.

Adolphus was 13 on the night he left his luxurious Huntleigh Village, Mo., home, in the luxurious family limousine, with Thomas L. Yowell, 38, the luxuriously-garbed family chauffeur, at the wheel.

Adolphus was bound for his grand-daddy's home and a New Year's Eve dinner party in his honor and was arrayed, as custom decrees a little gentleman should be arrayed for such an occasion, in new long trousers suit and a new gray felt hat.

CAPTIVE OF NEGRO

The dinner was to have been quite an affair. The dinner Adolphus got was a scrambled, musty egg, peppered with dirt and a crust of bread.

The limousine was swinging out of the drive of the Orthwein estate onto a main road when there was a startling tapping on its rear window. Yowell stopped the car; obviously there was someone on the trunk rack.

The chauffeur stepped around the rear of the car into a gun. A big Negro behind it said:

"Let's have what money you got and I want the car."

The chauffeur parted with $5 and advised his young master to leave the limousine.

"He stays," said the Negro. "I want him."

Still threatening Yowell, the kidnaper, who wore a hood that partially concealed his head, climbed behind the wheel and drove off.

SEARCH STARTS

Yowell returned to the house and the alarm was flashed to the police. There wasn't any dinner party at the Augustus Busch home that night. Augustus Busch himself assumed direction of the search, drove into St. Louis and personally assembled the best detectives on the force to work on the case.

An hour after the kidnaping, the limousine was found abandoned. A witness was found who saw the kidnaper and his victim leave it, get into another car and drive off.

The hue and cry of search was raised throughout Missouri and Kansas. No trace of the boy came to light. The family of the victim drew a curtain of silence and secrecy over the mystery.

At 3 o'clock on New Year's afternoon, Henry Troll, attorney for the Busch family, announced that the boy had been found and was safe.

RANSOM DENIED

"All I can say is that the transaction to get back the child came about through a connection made 30 years ago," he said. "No ransom was paid."

Can you imagine a newspaperman being satisfied with any such explanation? Troll was besieged by demands for additional details and he finally agreed to permit the boy to be interviewed in his presence.

Adolphus entered a room filled with newspapermen with a cheery, "good afternoon. I'm glad to be back again."

Questions were shot at him right and left but the only new detail divulged was that the lad's kidnaper had asked him, "you're Percy Orthwein's son, aren't you?"

Troll interrupted practically every answer and would not allow the boy to talk about the house in which he had been held prisoner or who was there. He was allowed to tell about the scrambled eggs (which, by the way, he couldn't eat). His new suit was all dirt and wrinkles.

PROTECT KIDNAPER

Troll dismissed the newspapermen with another statement that no ransom was paid and that the family had agreed with the kidnaper that the boy should make no statement that might damage the Negro.

It was reported, and printed, that the family knew the kidnaper and would not prosecute him.

The case appeared to be closed as far as the family was concerned. St. Louis county authorities, smarting a bit perhaps because Busch called in the St. Louis city police, weren't so satisfied to let it drop. Neither were the newspapers, and one newspaperman in particular, Harry T. Brundidge, St. Louis crime reporter, who has solved a number of notorious cases.

Brundidge, a better detective than most men who earn their living at police work, broke the real story in his paper.

He accused Charles Y. Abernathy, 28-year-old son of a Negro real estate man, of being the kidnaper. He revealed that Pearl Abernathy, the father, learning what his son had done, made telephone overtures to Orthwein, assuring him the return of Adolphus if his own son were not prosecuted.

The kidnaped youth had been kept overnight, the reporter disclosed, in Charles Abernathy's squalid home with his own seven children.

KIDNAPER JAILED

The county prosecutor announced that prosecution was "vital to the public welfare" no matter what the Busch family had decided, agreed or paid.

He ordered Abernathy's father arrested. Also his girl cousin, Elfrida Robb. They were jailed while police sought Abernathy. They couldn't find him.

Brundridge did.

Brundridge found him, printed an interview with him in which claimed he had planned only robbery, and then the newspaperman surrendered him to authorities.

Charles Abernathy alone was tried. He was convicted of kidnaping and sentenced to 10 years for that offense and 15 years for armed robbery.

The 30-year old "connection" which resulted in the boy's release is still a mystery. As is the matter of ransom, which a national periodical announced without qualification, was $143,000.

Gang War Feared in South Boston

Rumors of a threatened outbreak of gang war in South Boston brought heavy details of police into Old Colony blvd. and Dorchester st., early today but no action developed.

Information came through a secret source to police that the outbreak was imminent and as a result three autos filled with patrolmen armed with riot guns were rushed to the section.

Value 4-Rail Plan Lines at 9 Billion

Washington, March 4 (AP)—A valuation of more than $9,000,000,000 on the railroads included in the proposed four-system Eastern consolidation plan was introduced today at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing on the merger as prepared by Irving L. Koch, a statistical expert for the commission.

The four proposed systems include the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore & Ohio and the Chesapeake & Ohio.

England Will Cut Credits to Soviet

London, March 4 (AP)—Credits for longer than one year no longer will be extended to Soviet Russia, on British exports, except under more stringent conditions than have prevailed in the past, the government has declared.

The general assumption in political quarters was that Great Britain is insisting on greater purchases of British manufactures.

CHINESE FIGHT AGAINST TWO NEW ATTACKS

By DIXON HOSTE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Shanghai, March 4 (INS)—Japanese troops today launched attacks on the Chinese army at two points at which it had resisted in the general retreat.

One of these is at Nanziang. The other is near Kating, west of Tachang.

Thus, although the Shanghai front had been comparatively quiet for nearly 24 hours, both sides found themselves again engaged in bitter warfare.

"NO PEACE IN SIGHT"

Both points of today's fighting are within the 12½-mile radius of Shanghai which the Japanese had demanded be cleared of Chinese troops. The main battle today is near Taitsang, eight miles northwest of Kating, which the Japanese occupied yesterday.

The fighting bore out the contention of Chinese leaders in Shanghai that there is little hope for immediate peace because of the harsh terms of the Japanese truce proposals.

The Nanking central government has ordered the 19th route army to continue its resistance.

GEN TSAI IN COMMAND

A denial was made that Nanking had ordered the army to cease hostilities, as reported yesterday.

Gen. Tsai Ting-Kai, commander of the army, reported he was resisting the Japanese at Nanking and west of Tachang, and that the Japanese repeatedly attacked his new defence positions.

Lo Wen-Kan, Chinese foreign minister officially announced rejection by China of Japan's demands presented yesterday as a basis for further peace parleys.

Two Chinese Generals Perish in Battle

Shanghai, March 4 (AP)—Two Chinese generals, Tang Chi-Shui and Oong Chao-Yuan, both of the 19th Route Army, perished in the defense of the Woosung forts, an official communique today said.

Both refused to follow orders of Gen. Tsai Ting-Kai, that they leave the forts when the Chinese retirement began. They chose to die fighting and left a message pleading with the nation "to continue to resist the foreign invader" and expressing the hope that the lost territory soon would be regained.

Chinese officials said the retreat from Shanghai was due to two failures of the Fifth Army, a Nanking organization. The 19th Route Army, chief defender of the city, comes from Canton.

The Fifth Army, the statement said, was defending the Kiangwan-Miaochungchen sector and was driven back by the first Japanese onslaught February 20. It was then replaced by 19th Army groups and sent to Liuho, a "quiet area."

When Japanese landed at Liuho and started a new drive from there, the Fifth Army again fell back, the official version said, and when troops of the 19th Army were sent to support it, the 19th's own line at Kiangwan was weakened so much the Japanese broke through.

Denunciation of the National government for failing to get reinforcements to Shanghai to enable the 19th Army to hold its lines, is very bitter.

Chinese Troops Mutiny Against Gen. Mah's Rule

Tokio, March 4 (AP)—A dispatch to the Rengo News Agency from Manchuli, Manchuria, today said Chinese troops belonging to the command of Gen. So Ping-Wen revolted against Gen. Mah Chan-Shan's Heilungkiang regime and seized control of Manchuli and Hailar, principal stations on the western Chinese Eastern Railway.

Gen. Su Ping-Wen's forces were formerly part of Gen. Ting Chao's Chinese Eastern Railway guard.

Japanese residents of Manchuli, the dispatches said, took refuge in the consulate there.

Gen. Su Ping-Wen recently pledged his allegiance to Gen. Mah's government at Tsitsihar, but his troops refused to follow him.

HEFLIN BEATEN BY 'FRAUD'

Washingtodn, March 4 (AP)—A ate elections sub-comittee found that Senator John H. Bank- of Alabama was not elected and that his seat should ared vacant.

Bankhead-Heflin contest mittee divided along party on the report prepared by nan Hastings, holding the n was fraudulent because of prtad violation of election emocratic members of the comttee, Bratton of New Mexico and orge of Georgia, will submit a minority report.

The Republicans who agreed to the report, in an executive session, were Watson, Republican leader, and Glenn of Illinois, in addition to Hastings.

The sub-committee finding will be submitted to the full committee and must be approved by it before reaching the Senate.

Death and Ruin Mark Wake of Routed Chinese Army

Copyright, 1932 by The Associated Press

Shanghai, March 4—Abandoned automobiles, stark corpses and rifled buildings marked the line of retreat of the Chinese 19th route army, which I followed today over a treacherous military road to Nanziang, the westermost limit of the Japanese advance on the Shanghai-Nanking railway.

There was much along the way to indicate that the Chinese withdrawal was not entirely orderly and deliberate. Along the eight-mile trail between Chenju and Nanziang stalled and overturned Chinese trucks and automobiles were encountered at frequent intervals.

JAPS CAPTURE CARS

There was evidence that in the rush to escape from the Japanese advance some Chinese drivers lost control of their cars racing over the rough roads and went on afoot rather than risk being overtaken.

Some merely ran out of gasoline and others were blown from the roads by bomb explosions. More than 50 automobiles and trucks, some of them bought by the Chinese army less than a month ago from Shanghai dealers, were captured by the Japanese in the final drive. Most of these were put out of commission before they were abandoned but many have been repaired and are now being used by the Japanese army.

So precipitate was the flight of the Chinese troops that they failed to destroy the wooden bridges they had construccted across the numerous creeks in building the road a few weeks before. This greatly facilitated the Japanese advance.

DEAD STREW ROADS

Here and there bluecoated figures were sprawled along the roadside, the bodies of luckless Chinese stragglers who were cut down during the flight.

The abandoned Chinese trenches which crease the countryside, provided further evidence of a hasty retirement. They were cluttered with blankets, clothing, utensils and ammunition, and in some cases with bits of loot such as jewelry, women's toilet articles and purses.

There has been no fighting at Nanziang, but the retreating Chinese plundered the town as they went through.

Of 15,000 Chinese who used to call it home, only a hundred or so remained in Nanziang today and they were mostly old men and women, sitting sullenly in their doorways, not even glancing up as the Japnese passed through.

TOWN IS LOOTED

The shelsl spared Nanziang, but the looters overlooked nothing. When the Japanese arrived they found that every little shop and dwelling had been ransacked, and it appeared that the Chinese had retired far beyond the town, possibly even to Soochow.

LEAGUE STIRS IRE OF WOMEN

Washington, March 4 (AP)—The indignation of the National Woman's Party has been aroused by the International Labor Office of the League of Nations.

Mrs. Harvey Wiley, chairman of the party broadcast a warning to feminists that the I. L. O. is a "menace to woman's right to earn her living." She quoted from a recent report by the international organization:

"The injurios effects of labor on the female organism are established by quite a series of statistical data—the injurous effects of employment on women is proved—intellectual work is said to be a still heavier cause of sickness among women."

She denounced, without naming, the slate of American members on a committee handling women's work problems, asserting the list consisted of opponents of equal rights for men and women in the industrial field.

Senate Mine Probe Asked

Washington, March 4 (AP)—A resolution urging an investigation by the Senate judiciary committee of the Kentucky coal mining areas was submitted to the Senate today by Senator Costigan (D., Colo.).

SOVIET ARMING BORDER AGAINST JAP ATTACK

Moscow, March 4 (AP)—Soviet Russia is increasing its army in the Far East for defense of the Siberian frontier "against Japanese attack," the government newspaper Izvestia said today.

In this first official acknowledgement that Russia is engaged in defensive military preparations, Izvestia asserted the Soviet government had come into possession of documents attributed to high Japanese military officials, containing proposals not only for the invasion of Siberia but also for combination with other nations in an attack on the Soviet Union.

"Recent events in Manchuria, particularly the serious increase in the number of anti-Soviet provocations, compel us to strengthen our defensive capacity for safety at our borders," the newspaper said. "We cannot ignore the fact that responsible representatives of Japanese military and non-military circles openly have raised the question of a raid on the Soviet Union and annexation of border provinces."

The newspaper then quoted the documents, which it attributed to unidentified Japanese officials.

"I consider it necessary," said one of these documents, "to assume a firm policy with relation to the Soviet Union and to be ready to start war at any moment. The first purpose of such a war must be not only to protect Japan against Communism, but to occupy the Soviet Far East and Eastern Siberia."

Another document quoted said: armed forces of the Soviet Union, "Taking into consideration the war must begin soon. Any delay would make conditions more favorable for them, and I consider it necessary that the Empire start a war against the Soviet Union as quickly as possible.

HUNDREDS SHOT DEAD FLEEING RUSSIA

Bucharest, March 4 (INS)—Slayings of hundreds of Russian peasants attempting to flee their country was revealed today in the report of a joint Russian and Rumanian commission established to investigate incidents along the Russo-Rumanian border.

The peasants were "shot down" by Russian guards as they tried to cross the border into Rumania without Soviet permits.

Russian and Rumania are separated by the Dniester river, now frozen, and it was across it the peasants tried to flee.

Japs Seek U. S. Aid at Geneva Armistice Conference

by ARNO BOSCH-FLEUROT,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Geneva, March 4—Japan today suggested a round-table conferenc with the United States represented, meet at once in Shanghai t orange terms for an armistice.

Naoake Sato, Japanese delegate, mad this proposal to the League of Nions assembly.

A angry clash developed when he marked:

"w that we have ceased hostilits."

W.V. Yen, chief Chinese delegate, atervened, declaring Japanese are still landing troops at Shanhi.

"It's plain," said Yen, "they inteno get control of the whole Yang valley from Shanghai to Nank."

Paul Hymans, Belgian foreign minister, presiding, ordered a 30-minute recess to clear the atmosphere, remarking a cessation of hostilities at Shanghai was imperative.

"Take your eyes off the mirage conjured up by the Japanese," demanded Dr. Yen when discussion was resumed.

"Eight transports arrived today. The Shanghai region is filling up with fresh Japanese troops. The defenders of the Woosung forts were killed to the last man.

"I ask urgently that the league authorize the four admirals, British, American, French and Italian, to form an immediate armistice commission."

In reply, Sato insisted upon immediate convocation of a round table conference in Shanghai.

GUARD COURT AT 'RED TRIAL'

Worcester, March 4—Thirty patrolmen and six police inspectors formed a cordon about Central District Court in Waldo st., today, following receipt of information that communists were planning to stage a demonstration at the trial of six rioters arrested in the past week.

Corridors were cleared of all but witnesses and police lines held back a huge crowd that demanaded admittance.

One of the defendants, Doretta Carmen, 26, whose address is unknown, was arrested with Michael Gregas when they attempted to break up a meetin, of the City Council last Monday.

PARTY HEADS IN MONTANA LOOK TO GARNER

By E. B. FUSSELL,
Universal Service

Helena, Mont., March 4—Governor J. E. Erickson of Montana today voiced a hearty appreciation of the accomplishments of John N. Garner since his election as Speaker.

"Garner's record has been 100 per cent," Governor Erickson declared.

"He has taken a bare numerical majority and made an effective working machine out of it. He has shown the country that Congress can function.

"He has commanded confidence by his willingness to put through the administration's plans for economic relief and he has shown his independence by serving notice that from now on the Democrats are out to enact their own program and make their own records."

Governor Erickson said he was committed to no candidate, but hoped for a presidential nominee who would be "a progressive, a battler, able to get united support and win."

Anti-Hoover sentiment is dominant in Montana, the governor added, and a candidate who can organize the opposition to the administration can have Montana's electoral vote.

Another vigorous comment, going directly to Garner's presidential availability, was voiced by S. V. Stewart, Montana's war-time governor, the last Democratic executive prior to Erickson and likewise unpledged.

"The people of Montana knew little about Garner until he was elected Speaker," Stewart declared. "Since he took that office they are coming to recognize that he is a resourceful, two-fisted fighter, with a world of courage and thorough knowledge of the practical side of public affairs.

"That is the type of candidate that the Democrats must have. It is no time for a namby-pamby, kid glove candidate."

GARNER RUSH IN NEBRASKA

Lincoln, Neb., March 4 (US—A three-cornered race had developed today for Nebraska's Democratic presidential primary vote, with leading politicians giving the edge to Speaker John N. Garner of Texas.

Petitions entering the name of Garner in the April 12 primary were filed with the Secretary of State Wednesday by Harold P. Caldwell, Omaha attorney.

As a reflection of strong sentiment in the state for the Texan, the petitions bore more than five times the number of signatures required by law—2200 names from more than one-third the counties of the state.

No congressional district had fewer than three times the required number and others had far in excess of this number. Filing of Speaker Garner's name in the primary was on the responsibility of the Garner-for-President committee. Garner's acceptance of the filing is not necessary under the Nebraska law.

The Speaker's opponents in the primary will be "Alfalfa Bill" Murray and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Only one Republican has filed, former Senator Joseph I. France of Maryland. President Hoover's name will not be filed, so France has a clear field so far.

SALES TAX IS APPROVED BY COMMITTEE

Washington, March 4 (AP)—The House ways and means committee today agreed formally on a 2¼ per cent general manufactures sales tax designed to bring in approximately $625,000,000 in additional revenue.

Acting Chairman Crisp announced the vote was overwhelming but declined to make known the number supporting the measure.

This big item forms the base for the new revenue bill expected to bring in approximately $1,100,000,000 to balance the budget for the fiscal year 1933.

On this basis, the committee plans to erect the remainder of the bill, which will include increases in individual and corporate income taxes to bring in approximately $250,000,000.

The Georgia Democrat declared, however, the committee had reached no decision on proposed administrative changes particularly those affecting the capital gains and loss provisions of the existing law.

Neither has it acted upon the recommendations of a subcommittee to levy excise taxes on a number of commodities including electricity, gasoline and industrial alcohol.

SHOT HIS LOVE TIES AWAY

It probably never occurred to him at the time, but Daniel R. Dillon was helping his wife, Anna, get a divorce when arrived home one night, drew a revolver and fired through the ceiling.

She told Judge McCoole about it in Suffolk Probate Court today, added testimony about a beating and took a divorce decree home with her to Schurteleff st., Revere.

Mrs. Jane W. Somerby told of an argument which started over nothing more than her refusal to let her husband, Philip, borrow her fountain pen. Blows and kicks that followed gave her a divorce and custody of a daughter, 12.

Four o'clock in the morning was the time Joseph Pauley, Regent st., Roxbury usually arrived home from taxi-driving. Sometimes he got home earlier, he said. Whne he did, Gertrude Pauley was not there, but at some party. In six months his decree becomes absolute.

AUTO PARKING BILL DEFEATED

A motion to substitute for an adverse committee report a bill sponsored by Mayor Curley making owners of motor vehicles liable for their machines parked in violation of the law was today overwhelmingly defeated in the House.

Rep. John V. Mahoney, against substitution, declared that car owners would come into court with the presumption of guilt of the parking offense and that the burden of proving otherwise would be thrown on their shoulders.

Usually, he pointed out, a man is presumed to be innocent of an offense until his guilt has been proven, with the burden of proof on the government.

New Honolulu Laws to Curb Women Attackers

Here is the second in a series of articles prepared for International News Service by its Honolulu staff correspondent, Gilbert Parker, giving the background of the Massie case which will be again be a focus of attention when the four Americans charged with the "honor killing" of a native are placed on trial March 10.

By GILBERT PARKER

Honolulu, March 4 (INS)—New laws dealing with the handling of attack cases on the islands will do much to improve conditions here, civic leaders attempting to make Honolulu safe for white women said today.

Of equal importance with the amending of Hawaiian laws by the extraordinary session of the territorial legislature to include the death penalty for attack cases was the action removing the old "corroborative testimony" clause.

It was this "corroborative testimony" provision which proved such a barrier at the trial of the five half-castes accused of attacking Mrs. Thalia Massie, wife of an American naval lieutenant, Mrs. Harry Kleugel, California woman leading the island reform movement, pointed out.

FOCUSSED ATTENTION

The Massie case focussed attention on island conditions. It will reach its climax March 10 when Mrs. Granville R. Fortescue, her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, and two naval enlisted men go on trial charged with the "honor killing" of Joseph Kahahawai, one of the five men accused of attacking Mrs. Massie.

Despite the straightforward story of Mrs. Massie at the trial of the five men, the jury could reach no decision. The remaining four defendants will be tried following the trial of the four Americans.

Corroborating evidence submitted at the natives' trial consisted in a few beads from Mrs. Massie's necklace which police say they found in the car used by her assailants.

The defense charged the police with having "planted" the beads.

TOLD OF ATTACK

Mrs. Massie's testimony told of having left the Ala Wai inn, to which she had gone earlier in the evening of Sept. 12, 1931, to attend a dancing party, because she was "bored and tired."

Previously she had identified four of the defendants, and was not certain of the fifth, David Takai, a Hawaiian-born Japanese. The others she identified besides Kahahawai were Horance Ida, Japanese; Ben Ahakuelo, Hawaiian, and Henry Chang, Chinese.

"A car drove up beside me and two men got out," Mrs. Massie testified. "They seized me and struck me." She identified the men as Chan and Kahahawai.

"I screamed, but they dragged me into the car and held me on the seat. I tried to talk to them to get them to let me go. They were holding me and every time I spoke they hit me. I told them my husband would pay them if they let me go. I told them I had money in my pocketbook and would give it to them. Abakuelo turned around and said: 'Take her pocketbook.'"

IDENTIFIED KAHAHAWAI

At a lonely place on the Ala Moano road the car turned off and she was dragged out. The brutal attack ensued.

Describing the actions of Kahahawai, the native for whose shooting her mother and husband are held, Mrs. Massie said:

"Kahahawai assaulted me. I knew him by his short-sleeved polo shirt. I prayed and heard his voice. He told me to shut up and hit me in the jaw. I heard the other men talk in a foreign language. And they spoke in English, too. They said filthy things."

(Editor's note: The next article will deal with the prevalence in the past of attack cases on the island.)

Boston Man Freed in Forgery, Friend Held

Leominster, March 4 (AP)—Charles L. Boyer, 36, of Portland, Me., pleaded guilty in district court today to two charges of forgery. He was bound over to the grand jury in $1000.

Boyer is charged with forging two checks. Leon A. Wilson of Bennington st., East Boston, was found not guilty to charges of uttering worthless checks. He was arrested with Boyer.

LAST NIGHT WE VIEWED THE PREMIERE OF SUNSHINE SUSIE and we can recommend it. In spite of having to crash the party on our secretary's tickets, we had a fine time. On our arrival at the RKO-Keith Theater for a moment we thought we had been taxied to New York and were coming down Broadway. Bands were playing, flood lights were bathing Washington st. with brilliant radiance, cameras were clicking, celebrities arriving—just like a First Night at Roxy's.

Books—And a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

It seems almost incredible that New York was once so small and neighborly that, if a friend lacked a telephone, one could send a message to the nearest drug store and ask a clerk to deliver it down the street. And it would be done. And done with grace and dispatch.

Very few families had telephones in their homes 40 years ago, even 30 years ago. I can remember a lad with whom I played who seemed to us other children a creature apart because his father had installed a party line in his house.

I would hear talk at home of the miracle which Mr. Bell had wrought, and it was at this time too that the first blue arc-lights were invented.

I seemed to realize even then, though vaguely, that I was to live in a wonderful age and that greater miracles were to follow. Of course I did not know just what these were to be, but I felt them.

I always listened whether they discussed Edison or religion or politics, and if, as sometimes happily happened, when old Doctor Saunders came to our house, Longfellow's "Old Clock on the Stairs" was recited by that gray-haired pundit, I would be in a seventh heaven of joy. He almost crooned the sweet old lines. I wonder if anyone ever recites poetry in any New York home today. There are lectures, I know; but I mean that spontaneous kind of recitation, for the sheer love of it, which that ancient friend of my father delighted in. People "dropped in" in those quieter days. They seldom do so now.

And people took leisurely walks through streets far less crowded. Sunday was a great day for me, because my father always took me for a long stroll. I can recall when an enormous ship called the Great Eastern was tied up at some wharf downtown. Today it would probably be about as large as an Albany night boat, but then, when my father took me to view it, it seemed to have the proportions of some barge the giant gods had constructed. And the time will doubtless come when the Europa and the Bremen will seem small and insignificant, and future generations will smile tolerantly at our childish interest in them.

We used to take a street car and go to High Bridge, which with that gigantic tower near it seemed to me one of the marvels of the universe. But just as we became accustomed to it, and as if the miracle of it were not enough, the city fathers decided that another and larger bridge was necessary, almost at the same point. Hence the building of Washington Bridge. And we had another wonder to discuss, another structure to cause our elders civic pride to expand. "What next?" the men used to say. And "Dear me" from the women.

In my infantile mind I wondered how they dared to expect anything more wonderful than the buildings and bridges around them. How could there be a greater age coming? And yet I did feel that there was a tingling beneath this huge city of ours, a restlessness that promised we knew not what. We could literally see New York expanding, growing, reaching out.

The young reader of today will find it hard, I know, to visualize a city without automobiles. Yet it is not so long ago that no motor was visible on Fifth avenue. A horse on our streets now attracts attention. It creates even a smile from the youthful passerby.

Of course, things are moving faster now than ever before. I would say too fast if I were not afraid of being called an old fogy. Will youth smile when I say that Fordham, on those rambles with my father, used to seem a long, long distance from the center of the city? I went there on many a Sunday, because the little cottage where Edgar Allan Poe lived and suffered was standing in the midst of meadows and trees; and it was a pilgrimage that we loved to make.

And when the tragic story of Poe was related around our dinner table I almost wept that any man could find life so bitter and sad, and know such utter destitution. I did not think it strange that his tiny cottage should be preserved, and that reverent pilgrims paid tribute to his memory. No one had told me that great cities were cold and cruel, and I saw no reason why they should be considered so. As children do, I took most things for granted.

As I walked over those blossoming fields starred with daisies and buttercups I had no idea that within a few years tall apartment houses would arise to choke the little house of the dead poet and almost hide it from the view of the thundering motorists of a later day. We would come back breathless from that long jaunt, while my mother recounted some of the tragic events of the poet's life, as we children sat under the gas burners in our basement dining room.

BOOKS AND CHARACTERS

By LINCOLN KIRSTEIN

THERE IS A CONSIDERABLE difference between authors and people who for one reason or another happen to write books. An author may begin of course with no particular notion of continuing a literary career. He writes a first novel called "The Way of Youth" based on what he has experienced, peopled with characters with whom he has actually had some connection.

The book has a certain freshness due to a non-literary attitude. That is, it is direct as reality and not artificial as a book. The book is a success and the author is [illegible] referred to as the [illegible] author of "The Way of Youth."

[illegible] starts to consider himself as a novelist. He begins to think what he [illegible] write next, what [illegible] from the author of "The Way of Youth." The first book had [illegible] basis in life. Hence its [illegible]. Too often the second book [illegible] only have a basis in the first [illegible] of [illegible] experience.

[illegible] after the second book [illegible] out he [illegible] He will [illegible] on the [illegible] books. [illegible] events [illegible] day [illegible] for [illegible] He [illegible] allow himself, after a while, to feel those events which make saleable fiction. His approach [illegible] will be [illegible] limited to the [illegible] toward the literature he might write.

His later books may sell, but as [illegible] things should be written about most of the authentic [illegible] has been [illegible] out of his style and he was [illegible] another [illegible].

• • •

As opposed to [illegible] is the type of writer who [illegible] ever conceive of [illegible] Often [illegible] and business [illegible] sufficient [illegible] things his experience can stand documenting in a simple straightforward narrative. Very often their books are far more absorbing than the common run of novels. Their subject matter is [illegible] personal experience un-spoiled by an artificial conception.

A very good example of such a book is "Sand in My Shoes," by Katherine Ripley, published by Brewer, Warren and Putnam. Mrs. Ripley's story is about the creation of a peach farm in South Carolina. The accuracy, the quiet, insistent detailing of actual events, makes her adventures read with an interest [illegible].

It is hard, however, if one has neither read nor actually experienced how painfully exciting the possibility of failure or success of a [illegible] crop may be, but one has only to start Mrs. Ripley's splendid document to be immediately engrossed in what the four seasons can bring to a woman in America.

Grand Duke Alexander, whose autobiography, "Once a Grand Duke" (Farrar & Rinehart) has just brought out, probably never grew peaches like Mrs. Ripley, but he has sailed the seas even if he hasn't had the [illegible] of a square [illegible] like Mr. Villiers.

Alexander was the last Czar's [illegible] and his education was [illegible] in the Imperial Navy. His book gives an astonishing and [illegible] picture of a man who [illegible] not stop [illegible] from being [illegible]. He realized that revolution was imminent after the riots of 1905. He constantly implored his [illegible] some direction [illegible].

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in "Revolt" for Warners

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

Louella O. Parsons

Los Angeles, March 4—Only a few months ago Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. was classified as a chip off the old block. Today he is not shining in the reflected glory of anyone. He has his own following and he is building up a clientele that any trouper would be proud to claim.

"Union Depot" did it by breaking box office records all over the country. The public, it seems, likes young Doug.

Today Darryl Zanuck told me he has bought "Revolt," a story by Mary McCall, as the next Fairbanks vehicle. Miss McCall also authored "It's Tough to Be Famous," Doug's very last picture. "And," says Mr. Zanuck, "wait until you see the boy in that one."

All of which means that Warner Brothers are going to do a little concentrating on Doug, Jr. He has proved worthy of their interest. William Dieterle, German director, will do the directorial honors on "Revolt."

Heard and Overheard

New York is just as fond of doing a little gossip as Hollywood. From a reliable source comes the report that Grant Withers, former husband of Loretta Young and well known movie actor, is going places with Betty Schuster. Mr. Withers is very attractive and Miss Schuster, who is a well known society woman, is not indifferent to Mr. Withers. Mrs. Clark Gable is leaving for New York next week. To forestall the busy gossips who will now begin rumoring a Gable separation, Clark announces he hopes to join his wife. He hasn't been in New York since he came out here. If he goes there now he will have to wear dark glasses as Greta Garbo did. New York is cra-a-zy about him.

Another Western for Lois

Lois Wilson

Remember Lois Wilson in "The Covered Wagon?" It was almost her best piece of acting Lois did so many Westerns for Paramount before and after "The Covered Wagon" that she was fed to the teeth with being the little gal who was always rescued by a wild and woolly cowboy. But that was a long time ago. A Western role for her now will be something new. That's why she turned down a lucrative vaudeville offer to emote opposite Tom Mix in "Death Valley Tom."

Defends Miss Marsh

Letters have arrived from friends and fans of Marian Marsh taking issue with me both for my review of her work in "Alias the Doctor," and because of a later item. I am sorry so many of these letters take the attitude that there is something personal in my criticism. I do not even know Miss Marsh and I am not saying anything against her ability. I only regret her inexperience. John Polis, a well known screen actor, writes:

"Marian Marsh, in my consideration, is one of the greatest screen actresses of today. All my friends agree with me on that point, and no other screen actress can compare with her ability and beauty. Besides she is the only actress on the screen that has a beautiful voice and looks refined and can wear clothes and does not look as if she is posing. There is no competition any star could offer her, for she is too great an actress and star."

After that letter Mr. Polis could get a job any day as a press agent.

Hollywood, Cal., March 4—An actor who is very near-sighted, went into a restaurant the other evening and asked the waiter to bring him the tray of French pastry so that he could make a selection. The Life Story of JOHN N. GARNER « Chapter 12 » By George Rothwell Brown

Tariff and Taxation—Are Two Questions That Interest Speaker Above All Others

CHAPTER XII

Tariff and T[illegible] financing of the government.

The [illegible] which John N. Garner has been interested above all [illegible]

He has never [illegible] to be diverted [illegible] jects. Never have [illegible] importance to the American people than [illegible]

Few men [illegible] hend them.

A [illegible] ner de[illegible] in the House [illegible] his talents and [illegible] full play.

As a [illegible] the Am[illegible] has [illegible] average [illegible] was [illegible] champion [illegible] of a century.

Born a [illegible] youth [illegible] When he began [illegible] in Uvalde County [illegible] among [illegible] people [illegible] soil, and [illegible] ture in one of [illegible]

His congressional d[illegible] he first went to Congress [illegible] larger than the state of [illegible] supported a population [illegible] 244 persons who [illegible] settlements, big and small ranches and [illegible] weather beaten, unpainted towns, scattered over a vast area.

TRAVEL WAS DIFFICULT

[illegible] from one settlement to [illegible] was [illegible] hardship and [illegible]

[illegible]

During the World War when America was [illegible] her wealth [illegible] McAdoo [illegible] the American people were [illegible] to get back what they so generously poured into the coffers of the [illegible] government.

ASKS ABOUT LOANS

Garner kept this thought in mind and one day at a hearing before the ways and means committee when William G. McAdoo was testifying [illegible] President Wilson's Secretary of the Treasury, if the United [illegible] were [illegible] get [illegible] back.

Secretary McAdoo replied that [illegible] United States would be repaid [illegible] was fixed on that [illegible] although he expressed [illegible] doubt about it. So far [illegible] was concerned Mr. McAdoo [illegible] on record as to his [illegible]

[illegible] years later when Garner [illegible] speaker of the House of Representatives [illegible] passed an act at [illegible] request [illegible] for one year. But [illegible] added a [illegible] making [illegible] hope that the American people had earned, not given [illegible] and that [illegible] debts would not be cancelled.

WORK ON INCOME TAX

It was under Speaker Garner's leadership that this firm declaration was made a part of the moratorium. It may yet be the means of saving to the hard pressed American people of today and to their children and to their children's children billions of money earned by the sweat of labor and toil.

Practically every feature of the present income tax law which serves the interest of the common man is the work of John N. Garner. When this law was under consideration he raised a virtual insurrection in the ways and means committee. In the end he whipped Secretary Mellon to a stand-still.

Garner is responsible, more than any other man for the principle of the graduated income tax and the [illegible] features written into the law. The committee had intended to report a flat income tax and inheritance tax. The militant Texan knocked this Republican scheme sky high.

It was Garner who put the graduated feature into both the income tax and the inheritance tax. There may be a difference of opinion as to the merit of this kind of taxation but it was Garner's theory that these provisions best serve the interests of the poor man and make the rich bear their just share of the common burden. If he had not led the fight in 1924 and again in 1926 the House probably would have followed the example of the Senate in repealing the estate taxes.

Winning in the House, Garner was one of the conferees on the part of the House when the bill went to conference. There was an exciting moment in the conference when Garner and Greene of Iowa, chairman of the Ways and Means committee, read the riot act to the Senate conferees.

ENFORCES HIS VIEW

Garner told Senator Dave Reed of Pennsylvania, Secretary Mellon's State, that the Senate would either take the House provision or there wouldn't be any bill. The Senate conferees and the Senate finally gave in. It was a notable victory for Garner.

This was followed by the hardest fight ever made against Mr. Garner in his own district, that of the campaign of 1928. Some people seem to have got it into their minds that the man who had defeated Secretary Mellon's tax reduction program in the face of White House and Wall Street support was a good man to keep down in Texas but a bad one to keep in Washington.

And there was still another reason why Garner wasn't popular in Washington among those whose tax theories didn't square with his.

In 1926 Garner led a fight for the creation of a joint non partisan committee on internal revenue taxation. The committee was established in February of that year. It is composed of five members of the ways and means committee of the House and five members of the finance committee of the Senate. A member of the House is the chairman. Its functions are to study the operation and effect of the internal revenue laws and to report to Congress and to investigate the administration of those laws.

REFORMS ACCOMPLISHED

A good many needed reforms were accomplished and in 1928 Garner had some teeth added. The committee was empowered to review all income tax refunds in excess of $75,000. As a result of this, it advocated numerous reforms, many of which have been adopted. The committee serves as a watchdog over refunds to taxpayers from the Federal treasury. Garner, naturally, was a member.

A determined effort to defeat Garner for reelection to Congress was launched. The campaign against him in 1928 was obviously financed from outside the state of Texas. Whether it was the American Taxpayers League that tried to beat him is now beside the question.

Charges of election irregularities were made against Garner and a House elections committee went to Texas to make an investigation. While the committee was sitting at McAllen, Representative Carl R. Chindblom of Illinois, a Republican member of the committee had this to say of John N. Garner:

"I am a member of the Ways and Means committee. I sit on the Republican side in this committee, and Mr. Garner sits on the Democratic side. I wish to state here that if this investigation committee should find the slightest evidence reflecting on Mr. Garner the entire House of Representatives would be the most astounded body in the world."

As a matter of fact the charges which had been made against Mr. Garner by Sid Hardin of Mission, Texas, his opponent in the Democratic primaries fell flat when Mr. Hardin admitted he had no direct evidence. The charges were withdrawn.

CHALLENGES TRADUCERS

Garner said he would resign if any evidence of irregularities could be produced against him. None was produced. Meanwhile Garner was being deluged with telegrams and letters from all over the country from Republicans and Democrats alike, all proclaiming the faith and confidence that was felt in him.

In a way it made the Fifteenth Texas district realize that it was represented in Washington by an outstanding national figure with hosts of friends in every part of the Union. The whole allegation against him collapsed. He won his election in triumph.

The culmination of Mr. Garner's attack on Secretary Mellon came in a remarkably clear and vigorous speech which he delivered in the House of Representatives on December 18, 1930. It is part of current history.

In this speech he declared that there was a "close bond of sympathy between corporations that have been granted tax refunds and the Republican national organizations."

He produced figures to show that each of 17 individuals contributing [illegible]0,000 to the Republican campaign funds had been a beneficiary of the "extremely liberal policy of the United States Treasury with respect to tax refunds, credits and abatements."

SHOWS TAX REFUNDS

He thereupon revealed the names of the 17 contributors to the Republican party with the amounts of their refunds running from several thousands of dollars to in excess of $2,000,000 each. He showed that heavy refunds of taxes had been made to the Aluminum Company of America, in which the Mellons are interested.

He disclosed that in all, during the preceding 11 years, tax refunds, credits and abatements had been made by the Treasury, principally to large corporations, in a sum amounting to nearly $3,000,000,000 and that in many of the cases refunds had been made without court decisions.

In the course of this debate it was brought out that Rep. Hawley was then the chairman of the joint committee on internal revenue taxation which theoretically passed on all the refunds in excess of $75,000.

"I was one," said Mr. Garner, "who insisted that the House control that committee and its chairmanship. I made that fight and carried the matter up for three months and it is the first time in the history of the Congress in 25 years to my certain knowledge—when the House of Representatives has secured the chairmanship of a joint committee, and that was the result of my effort, and I am proud of it."

AGAINST AMENDMENT

But I say this that under the domination of the Republican organization in this House that chairman has not functioned as I thought he would and as I think he ought to function.

As one of the results of the election which changed the control of the House of Representatives in 1931, Speaker Garner had the satisfaction of seeing a Democrat assume the chairmanship of the joint committee on internal revenue taxation.

The party leadership under John N. Garner was now in a position to survey in detail tax refunds from the treasury to heavy contributors to Republican campaign funds.

Although coming from a dry district, and a dry state, Mr. Garner voted against the Eighteenth Amendment. When prohibition was finally written into the Constitution of the United States however he conceived it to be his duty, as a Representative in Congress, to vote in favor of enforcing that part of the Constitution as long as it should remain a part of it. That has been his consistent position on prohibition.

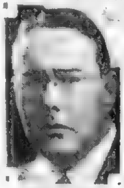
THIS IS LIFE

LEGISLATORS HAVE FUN WHILE TAXPAYERS PAY AND PAY

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS—

AND WHAT HAS the Committee on Patents of the House of Representatives to do with the American theater?



PROF. ROGERS

And what business has the egregious Mr. Sirovich to take up the time of the Committee in talking about the drama?

And what reason has he to believe that he has the right to summon the dramatic critics of America to Washington to discuss—before the Committee on Patents, mind you!—the question whether the critics are killing the American drama, or whether the American drama is just boring the critics to death?

And what in the name of the Fathers of the Republic does Representative Sirovich of the Committee on Patents think he is being paid for, anyway? Ten thousand dollars a year, isn't it?

I crave to know, as we say down in Arkansaw, what the Committee on Patents thought it was discussing on that historic occasion. The A. P. story neatly and completely avoided saying anything on that point. Probably the reporter didn't know. If the Committee had been spending its time discussing its own subject, the chances are we never should have known that there is a Committee on Patents.

• • •

Legislators Bear Out Bernard Shaw

Now Sirovich threatens, if the critics do not come to heel on March 14, to raise the question in the House as to their non-attendance. And the Congress being what it is, I shouldn't be at all surprised to see the House uphold Sirovich and issue subpoenas or habeas corpuses, or whatever they are, to compel the attendance of Messrs. Philip Hale, H. T. Parker, Harold Crosby, Nicholas Young, to say nothing of all the bright lights of New York, plus George Jean Nathan, the most competent of them all.

I remember a few years ago reading a very able article by Walter Lippmann, in which he questioned very strongly the right of the Senate to constitute itself as a court of justice and summon outside witnesses before it by subpoenas which may not be evaded. He claimed that the practice was unconstitutional, illegal, impolitic and futile. If that be true of the Senate, it must obviously be even more true of the Lower House. Years ago in his earliest book, "A Preface to Politics," Mr. Lippmann spoke of the habit of Congress of considering itself "a kind of preliminary hearing for the Last Judgment." That was 20 years ago and the practice has become a habit by now.

There are times when one is inclined to take at full value Bernard Shaw's contention that we moderns do not live long enough to grow up. We die still adolescent, still in the stage where we can't stop fooling about serious things. And the Congress of the United States does not necessarily furnish the most gorgeous instances of that truth. Any state Legislature, nay more, any municipal council can offer examples that will tie anything you may hear about in Washington. Anyone who follows the council debates either in Boston or in Cambridge can testify to that.

• • •

Cuckoo Session in Bay State

Yesterday some obliging soul introduced in the Massachusetts Great and General Court—general is right!—a resolution naming the veery as the Massachusetts bird. The Legislature that took $400 for doing nothing last summer spent a certain amount of time razzing the proposition. It should not have been razzed. It should have been killed in committee. It is no more the Legislature's business to name state birds and state flowers and state songs than it is its business to design a special costume for voters to wear Sundays and holidays.

Instead of killing the cuckoo resolution in committee, the House went cuckoo itself. They compared the veery bird to Mrs. Peabody, in that it migrates to Florida. They listened spellbound while a member imitated it. They proposed substitutes, stewed coot, fried chicken, old crow, and the like. They thought, apparently, they were acting in one of those "mock trials" that used to be so popular in church vestries. Only, they were being paid for it.

Meanwhile, out in Cambridge, a member of the school committee, answering a very just and reasonable protest against the wasteful and expensive and probably illegal $4 dinners with fixings indulged in by former school committees, had a lot of fun with an old Cambridge statute allowing members of the town government to eat at the town's expense to the extent of eight pence. Some difference between eight pence and four dollars!

But what struck me was the bald effrontery of the gentleman's conclusion, as reported in the press:

In any event let us not foster a spirit of humorless reform, nor go the way of the reformer who inevitably becomes rancorous and falls by the weight of his picayune prying into public peccadilloes."

• • •

Taxpayers Foot the Bills

All right, let's take up the challenge. Now is the time of all good men and true to come to the aid of the party.

Let us form an association of Humorless and Rancorous Reformers, whose business it is to deal with the boys-who-never-grew-up, the legislators with arrested development, who seem to have no idea of the dignity of their office, of competence and efficiency, or even of common honesty. What are picayune peccadilloes?

Horseplay about the dramatic critics in a Committee on Patents is not only ridiculous; it is loafing on the job, it is stealing a salary from the taxpayers. Horseplay about the veery bird is not only feeble-minded; it is stealing money and time from the taxpayers of the Commonwealth. And the Cambridge school committee's bills for dinners and ice-cream sodas and candy and china dogs is simply a shabby and ugly form of petty larceny from the city treasury.

The moral seems to be that the U. S. congressman is only a municipal councilor with his pants pressed. If you do not believe get hold of the Congressional Record some time and read the unutterable junk with which much of it is filled.

I shall be glad to hear from any Humorless and Rancorous Reformers who may be interested. The line forms on the right!

BOYS CONFESS GUN THEFTS IN CAMBRIDGE

Three Plead Guilty as Five Are Arrested for Armory Break; Doctored Auto Plates Found

A heavily armed squad of police rounded up five Cambridge youths today, going into their homes to arrest them after surrounding the houses to prevent escape.

Three automatic pistols, stolen two weeks ago from the Cambridge Armory, were found under a closet floor in the home of John Grinadi, 18, of Main st.

Pleas of guilty to breaking into the armory and taking six guns were later made in East Cambridge district court by Grinadi, Frank Dobrowsky, 17, of Harrison st., and Jasper Brolin, 23, of Main st.

They were held in $10,000 each for the grand jury. The other two youths, Frank Cordina, 21, of Main st., and Anthony Zeringes, 19, of Columbia ter., were held as suspects for Boston police.

A Canadian army rifle, pistol ammunition and 1931 number plates painted red to resemble this year's plates were also seized while the arrests were being made.

Police and holdup victims from all parts of Greater Boston were called to Central sq. police station to try to identify them.

Police said several of the youths turned on one of their number and hotly accused him of providing a "tip" leading to the attempted robbery of a North End provision store last Friday night in which Julius Rottenberg, the watchman, was wounded saving a $1200 payroll.

Butler, Nabbed After Holdup, Denies Being Member of Gray Gang

Arrested as a suspected member of the holdup gang of William H. Gray, escaped convict, Richard Butler, 29, of Fourth st. pl., East Cambridge, was identified today according to police, as one of three armed men who robbed a woman store owner of $205 last night.

Mrs. Catherine Hodess of Allston st., Brighton, who has a variety store on Waltham st., South End, went to headquarters and picked Butler from a lineup.

Shortly afterward a squad of Brighton officers started on a search of several apartments on information expected to lead to the capture of two others, suspected "pals" of Gray.

Gray was captured in New Hampshire Monday following an attempted holdup Friday night in Allston where Sgt. Philip Sweeney of the railroad police and Gray both were wounded.

Butler was arrested by Special Officers Tiernan and Hamlett who saw him leave a machine and enter an apartment on Massachusetts ave., South End, where Gray formerly lived. In the car was a girl, Bertha Brown, 25, of Huntington ave., who was released after questioning.

Butler denied knowing Gray. Police said he had bloodstains on his clothes and they found two loaded .38 automatics in the automobile. The car, they said, was registered to another man but investigation showed Butler had sold it to the present owner.

MOST OF LOANS APPROVED BY 3 OFFICIALS

McKnight and Loverings Led Activities of the Medford Trust Committee

Two members of the Medford Trust Co. investment committee of five were labelled "rubber stamps" today in Middlesex court in the trial of Edwin T. McKnight president, and Frank W. Lovering son of Lewis H. Lovering, former mayor of Medford.

The inference came during [illegible] examination of the [illegible] Lovering who [illegible] on trial. The [illegible] partners in a construction business.

In response to a question of Judge Harold P. W[illegible] Lovering said the three were the active members of the board.

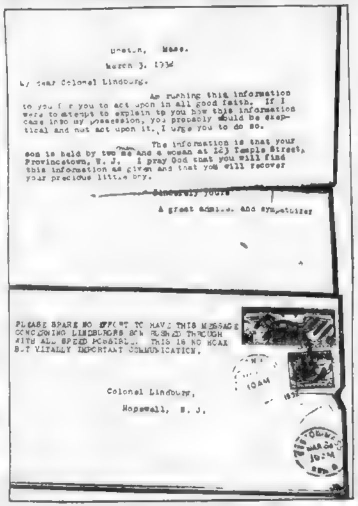
'SPIRIT' CLUE TO LINDBERGH BABY HOAX

Clement G. Baines, also known as Henry G. Wilson, "Christian spiritualist and clairvoyant," is shown as he appeared when two Boston Evening American reporters traced him to his home.



Boston, Mass.

March 3, 1932

My dear Colonel Lindburg,

I am rushing this information to you for you to act upon in all good faith. If I were to attempt to explain to you how this information came into my possession, you probably would be skeptical and not act upon it. I urge you to do so.

The information is that your son is held by two men and a woman at 123 Temple Street, Provincetown, N. J. I pray God that you will find this information as given and that you will recover your precious little boy.

Sincerely yours

A great admirer and sympathizer

PLEASE SPARE NO EFFORT TO HAVE THIS MESSAGE CONCERNING LINDBURGHS SON RUSHED THROUGH WITH ALL SPEED POSSIBLE. THIS IS NO HOAX BUT VITALLY IMPORTANT COMMUNICATION.

Colonel Lindburg,

At top is the hoax letter sent to Col. Lindbergh by Baine, alias Wilson, and the envelope which aroused suspicion of the postal employes. Mary McLeod, who "received" the spirit message and her sister, Jennie McLeod, Baine's landlady, are also shown. The woman confided her "revelation" to Baine and he typed out the message and Jennie McLeod mailed it. (Staff photos.)

BIG RESPONSE IN GILCHRIST SALE

Action aplenty in town yesterday [illegible] Boston [illegible] crowds who answered Gilchrist's invitation to attend their [illegible] Riddance Party.

Over one quarter of a million dollars worth of merchandise was drastically reduced for this [illegible] bargain event, one of the greatest clearance sales ever staged in the retail history of Boston.

The event proved beyond a doubt that hoarded money [illegible] New England's appreciation of value and that even in these days of so-called depression new high records for big business can be made and are being consistently made by aggressive and alert stores exemplified by Gilchrist's, the Friendly Store of Boston.

Expose of "Spirit" Clue Aids in Kidnap Hunt

[illegible] police and postoffice inspectors [illegible] yesterday, the Boston Evening American blasted a false clue in the Lindbergh kidnaping which originated in Boston.

Late editions of this paper carried the confession of a Boston clairvoyant that he wrote the letter to Col. Lindbergh which had the entire nation aroused and police in action from Boston to Princeton, N. J.

Henry G. Wilson of 6 Worcester st., South End, confessed to two Boston Evening American reporters, Harry A. Benwell and John H. Noonan, that he wrote the anonymous letter stating the Lindbergh baby was held captive by two men and a woman at 123 Temple st., Provincetown, N. J.

The police of Provincetown, N. J., State troopers of that state were feverishly combing P[illegible] N. J., and news services were catching word of the search throughout the nation when the American reporters traced Wilson, interviewed him at his home and obtained the admission that there was no basis for the information other than a spiritualist message.

Wilson's letter aroused the hopes of the heart-broken parents of the abducted child and of the nation and there is no humor in the fact that [illegible] had police excited and bewildered.

The Boston Evening American's expose was just a bit of good newspaper work—another piece of the same good newspaper work, if you please, for which this paper has been noted since it was founded.

The Boston Evening American is sorry that it was obliged to shatter the hope that the nation saw in the letter.

SO, THIS IS SPRING!—SEE CALENDAR

—By HELEN ROWLAND—

SO, THIS IS SPRING!

• • •

Oh yes, it is! The calendar SAYS spring comes this month. And, while you may doubt a clock or a thermometer or a man's vows of eternal love, you've got to believe a calendar, unless you're a fearful skeptic.

• • •

Spring! When a man's heart, however battered, bruised or dented, springs right back into working condition, and his pulse springs into action.

• • •

[illegible]

• • •

When Nature springs a head-cold or the grippe or that annual lassitude on most of us—and the heavens spring a daily surprise, in the way of snows and freezes.

• • •

When the [illegible] [illegible] flowered [illegible]

• • •

When hope springs (eternal) in the Tired Business Woman's soul, and she trips forth to have another permanent, a new tint of hair and a face-renovation—

• • •

And the Tired Business Man springs a giddy, aurora borealis necktie and a buttonhole carnation on the dazzled eyes of the women in the office.

• • •

Oh yes, the snow may be a foot deep, outside your door, and the thermometer may be racing down toward zero—but you KNOW its spring, just the same! You know it, by the way YOUTH springs up in your veins and your heart, your pulse dance, and you long to go adventuring or to fall in love, or to get on a ship and sail away somewhere — ANYWHERE!

Care of Feet Is Essential in Children

MURDER OF THE NIGHT CLUB LADY

"Well, doctor—this also looks like heart trouble?"

Multooler rubbed the red front of his nose with a pudgy forefinger.

"As a matter of fact, Mr. Colt, it would look like heart trouble—shows all the symptoms, just like the other one did—except for one thing!"

What that?" [illegible]

"I'd like to show you something," he said, in a nasal and sepulchrally meaningful voice.

Without a word we followed Doctor Multooler to the bedside where lay the body of Christine. Lifting the head in the palm of one hand, Dr. Multooler pointed with the fingers of the other to the nape of the neck.

"See those marks?"

We did see them. They were unmistakable on the dead young flesh—welts that scarred the white skin, long fang-like [illegible] and blue [illegible]. I confess I [illegible] of these [illegible] throat and [illegible] Christine. Had [illegible] could have [illegible]

"You will send down both bodies to the Morgue and have a full report for me by morning," the commissioner requested. "It seems to be murder, gentlemen, with a superior technic. We shall have to work fast. I am relying on you, Multooler, to discover exactly how those girls died."

"I will do my best," promised the big physician earnestly.

[illegible]

"Will you get hold of Adams and Thompson and have them bring their machines up here?" he asked suddenly.

[illegible]

"Machines—are you going to try that, chief?" he gasped.

"Try what?" barked Dougherty.

1250 Layers in Puff Paste

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

BEING A LADY of my word I have for you today the complete directions for making puff paste as prepared by K. Cameron Den Dooven, in the Martha Lee Cooking School this week.

There's really no end of luscious pastries that can be made from this delicious paste which, Mr. Den Dooven told me, was invented in 1630 by a young artist, Claude Gelee, who gave up painting and became a pastry cook in Rome in 1620. He certainly built a monument to himself almost literally when we recall that the [illegible] of Mr. Den Dooven's puff paste contains over 1250 layers of flour and shortening, which is what accounts for the miraculous puffing from a ¼ inch sheet of dough to a 3 inch high patty.

Here's the foundation recipe to be halved for a small family.

PUFF PASTE

1 lb. bread flour	4 cups
1 lb. butter	2 cups
1½ tsps. salt	1½ tsps.
½ pt. cold water	1 cup

Place the flour in a bowl, add salt and ¼ of the butter, then add the water and knead until smooth.

Roll out the four corners having the dough a little thicker in the center. Place the remaining ¾ pound butter in the center and fold the four corners over it, tucking it in tight so that no butter can escape. Cover with a wet cloth and set away in a cool place for ½ hour. Now roll out into a rectangle. Fold it in three parts as you would a business letter, turn it around so that the folded edges are on the side and roll again. Now fold in three parts again, cover with a damp cloth and let stand in the ice box for two hours. Now repeat the rolling—that is roll out, fold in three, turn the dough half-way around, roll out again and fold in three again. This is called the "fourth turn" and the paste will keep this way from two to four days on the ice well covered with a damp cloth. Before using, however, repeat this operation twice, that is take the dough from the chest, roll it out, fold it in three and roll out again. Set away for half an hour and repeat. It sounds like lots of work but really isn't and the results more than justify the trouble.

Daily True Story

When Relatives Meet

"WAIT!" a man's voice called eagerly. Ace stopped abruptly just as she was about to enter the revolving door of a restaurant. In her confusion, trying to dodge a group of girls, she dropped her pocketbook.

"Oh, I beg your pardon," exclaimed the man who seemed to be pursuing her. "I thought you were Veronica Murray."

"Well, I'm not," answered Ace coldly, "and see what you've made me do—lose my pocketbook." She stared furiously through the glass door at her new leather handbag as it swirled around on the floor.

"I'll fetch it directly," said the young man.

"It's the least you can do!" thought Ace angrily.

Looking on, the strange young man whirled around with the door three times to the unconcealed aggravation of the patrons of the restaurant who happened to be using it primarily as an exit or an entrance. At last when he returned the pocketbook to Ace she could not help smiling at him gratefully, after he had made such a spectacle of himself for her sake.

"Thank you," she said. "I should have recovered it myself."

"It was rather a feat," he admitted, dabbing his flushed face with a handkerchief.

LOOK FOR A GIRL

"What luck!" he thought suddenly, staring at her. "Why, she's beautiful. I mustn't let her give me the slip."

"You know, I'm wondering," he wondered aloud, "whether you were going in here for a bit of fodder. Because if you were, so was I. And if we both are, why not together? I mean, I should be delighted if you would lunch with me."

After a lively meal, during which each had given the other an assumed name and invented thrilling stories about their former lives—neither wishing to reveal the truth—they parted with a tacit understanding that it was their custom to lunch at this place every day.

The next day, Ace hesitated before going back. Nothing definite had been said, but she knew he would be there.

He was waiting outside the [illegible] he [illegible] her close to him, and gave her an almost imperceptible hug.

It was after she had [illegible] not to be denied. There was nothing imperceptible about it. She admitted the truth and faced it [illegible]. She was lunching daily with a strange man who called himself Alexander Oliphant and who hugged her each day with increasing [illegible] of which she enjoyed tremendously. What, she wondered vaguely, would her New England parents think of their daughter now—she who had graduated with high honors from college and instantly become self-supporting in a way which could only make parents very proud. For Ace Thornton—known to her friends as Ace, but to strange young men who lunched and hugged her as Delilah Briggs—managed a literary page in an important women's magazine.

After a week of hilarious lunches, for they both laughed [illegible] their own fibs as at each other's wit, and after a week of increasingly violent hugs in the revolving door, Alexander Oliphant began to be conscience stricken.

The following day, Ace solved his problem for him.

"I'm going away for a week," she said, "so there won't be any more lunches." She almost added, "or hugs!"

Then he became plagued with the fear that he would never see her again.

"Oh yes, I'll be here a week from Monday," she assured him, refusing to give her address or tell where she was going.

So Ace left New York to participate in a Thornton family reunion at her grandmother's house. It was to be the first in five years.

GATHERING OF CLAN

Finally the day came for the gathering of the clan. Thorntons from all parts of the country arrived in cars of various descriptions, indicative of varying incomes. As Ace was sitting on her grandmother's porch a roadster drew up in front of the house and a young man leaped out.

"Here comes Alfred!" said one of her numerous relatives.

Ace caught her breath. It was Alexander Oliphant!

After they had been introduced [illegible] explained nothing which neither he nor [illegible] their previous acquaintance, they managed to slip away [illegible] blue bush.

Seizing her by the wrists, Alfred said tauntingly, "Delilah Briggs, my fifth cousin!"

Ace tried to avoid his mocking [illegible] but when he kissed her with an ardor which he now knew to be the real thing, she said [illegible], "How abominable to belong to such a big family. Why, I can't even pick up a man without finding he's my cousin!"

To which Alfred Thornton replied, "See here, young lady, you're a member of this family who needs to be looked after. And since I'm the only one who seems to have discovered it, when do I begin?"

JIG-SAW IN THE HOME AND A GOOD TIME ON THE AIR

By GILBERT SELDES

GILBERT SELDES

I HOPE IT IS NOT TRUE that all the American makers of jig-saw puzzles are inferior to the British, because at this crisis in foreign trade and foreign relations, we cannot afford to let a major industry go into the hands of our rivals. Addicts of the jig-saw assure me that the true interlocks, the well-balanced color schemes, and the amusing designs of the pieces, are to be found in the imported puzzles, and my one experience with the native product bears them out, because nine-tenths of the puzzle is all in one shade of dull brown and four hundred of the five hundred pieces have the same nasty little hook which seems to fit everywhere and fits nowhere. Nevertheless, like a brave young patriot, I keep an open mind.

It Lives Again

Of [illegible] jig-saw puzzle is the only [illegible] find any pleasure and the reason is simple; to me it is the single pastime which actually absorbs attention. The anagram may excite you temporarily, the cross-word may, and does, irritate; but the cut-out puzzle makes it impossible for you to think of anything else in the world while you are doing it. There are fortunate people who get this effect of complete absorption when they hear music, but most music is so unengrossing that the mind goes off into a hundred bypaths—a very good thing, too, for writers, inventors, and [illegible] of whom ought to go to concerts in order to let their subconscious function for them. Reading books after the first ten, or ten thousand, is semi-automatic; you can read, quite attentively, and follow a totally different train of thought at the same time. I wouldn't try to do this with War and Peace, or the works of D. H. Lawrence; but it can be done with nine books of ten.

The jig-saw puzzle is also attractive because, although it [illegible] the mind it requires not one grain of intelligence. That is to say, the process of matching pieces of plywood depends on an instinct for form, and not on the furrows of the brain. Perhaps that is why the intellectuals are taking it up; but it doesn't explain the quite unreasonable triumph you experience when you get two pieces, obviously intended to go together, actually to go together. As for the great moments when the collocation of half a dozen pieces brings forth a vacuum into which a shape which has perplexed you for hours naturally falls—that is one of the great moments of life and a mere beginner should rest in silent [illegible] before it and not try to explain its mystery.

Time on the Air

I wonder whether the editors of Time aren't, with natural pride in their offspring, exaggerating the loss to radio of their own departure from it. Their selective skill and the talent of Donald Stauffer, who put the March of Time on the air, made that half hour notable, readers of Time have written to the magazine protesting [illegible] the disappearance of the program, but the publishers feel that they have done what they set out to do, that is, make more people aware of the nature [illegible] of their weekly and that they [illegible] a week the entertainment of the world at [illegible] manufacturers of radio and to broadcasting [illegible] the number of protesting letters [illegible] of their [illegible] the radio will follow out of the window.

[illegible] of this period was that it was made for broadcasting, whereas, with the exception of news reports, almost all the good things on the air are there because the broadcasters can catch them: speeches by important individuals, concerts by good orchestras, great events which would take place without the assistance of [illegible] interested in the continuance of radio as an industry are concentrating on these events, helping to arrange international hookups, inveigling great men, spending huge sums, to [illegible] important. The rest of their time they give to advertisers [illegible] being good businessmen, put on what everyone else is [illegible] moment, crooners, dance orchestras, and dialogues.

It isn't exactly true that the radio advertisers are giving good intelligent entertainment on the air. The best things come on the sustaining hours, during which stations build up people who are still fresh, [illegible] to say or do. Those which please commercial [illegible] are bought over and almost invariably grow stale [illegible] because they had little except a stunt to start with, or because a [illegible]. At the moment, it appears that crooners are [illegible] are going up, especially comic ones. Thus [illegible] of the old minstrel show, using the old [illegible] their own. Most of them are unbearable.

No Relief

A few years ago there was some satisfaction in giving the knob a good swift turn. Now, when you are bored or offended by the pawky [illegible] of radio comedians, it is of little use to search for another [illegible] alive is music which has ceased to have character, which repeats itself endlessly, and which is still, in spite of [illegible] protests, overloaded with plugging. Orchestral personality is almost non-existent on the air, unless the fact that one band plays fast and one slow can be called character. Furthermore, the solidity of the old hours has almost all disappeared; the quarter hour, a little bit of this and that, is all that remains.

The fact is, then, that more people care for the Rise of the Goldbergs than care for the March of Time. I do not think this speaks [illegible] of the community, but the [illegible] of its leaders was betrayed years ago when radio was handed over, bound and sold, to advertisers. The broadcasters are quite right in saying that commercial radio has brought [illegible] orchestras and made available the speeches, the reported events and all the other good things on the air. But the implication [illegible] these things would be missing without commercial support is not justified. Some mighty fine things come over the sea from non-commercial stations abroad. I feel sure that the Hearst papers would cheerfully let Floyd Gibbons broadcast from China, whether they had to pay for his time or not.

For 200,000 People

Radio is safe so long as it is interesting. It is a pity that what interests twenty million people does not interest another, intelligent [illegible] significant, two hundred thousand. But newspapers and magazines [illegible] and some of them manage to circulate in the millions, too, without entirely losing their intellectual integrity. It only remains for advertisers to find the programs which can interest the millions and not make the minority a little sick.

Meeting the Test

. . Life Insurance, the great stabilizer of human welfare, carries on . .

PEACE OF MIND, with which to face the present and plan for the future, never has meant more than it means today. These are trying times. It is difficult to believe that anyone has escaped the effects of a world-wide deflation of values, contraction of enterprise, social change.

That life insurance companies, during the past year, have been able to show an increase of insurance in force is indeed a tribute to the high purpose which these institutions serve. It indicates a growing national consciousness of this reliable form of financial protection.

Life insurance is, in a real sense, an investment in peace of mind, with interest payable in future comfort. It paves the way to education, to replacement of earning power cut off by death; to establishment of credit; to liquidation of indebtedness; to estate creation—to these and other family or business objectives.

What Big Fight Means. How It Helps Business. How N.Y. Merchants Aid. ↕ Boston Very Backward. Hub Has Big Fighters. How About Big Fights?

Landing Big Fistic Fish Benefits Many

Once again, fellow fans, why is it that Boston, with more good fighters to the square inch than any other burg in the world, can't get the big fights? Of course, we admit that Jackie Fields, world welterweight champion, meets Johnny Indrisano in the Boston Garden tonight and with a titleholder in it the encounter can be labelled a big fight. But what we mean is a really BIG fight, the kind that has the turnstiles clicking like batteries of rapidfire guns, runs the gate into six figures and puts plenty of money into circulation in the town. Do you know what a BIG fight means to the business men of the city, the hotels, restaurants, stores, railroads, transit companies, newspapers? It means money and plenty of it. When a great city like New York believes a big sporting event is so important to the business community that it appoints a committee of big business [illegible] to devise ways and means of bagging these attractions, Boston's backwardness in landing the big sports attractions becomes all the more apparent.

Big business men of New York comprise the Broadway Merchants Association. They have a special committee entitled the National Sports Events Committee whose duties are to help bring to New York the leading sports events. Ralph Steinberg is chairman of this committee and among his confreres are Ellis A. Gimbel of the famous Gimbel family of merchants, Maj. William P. Kenneally, real estate leader and president of the New York A. C.; Frank Gorman and G. J. Bascom, nationally known hotel men. This committee keeps in close touch with and works and co-operates with the State Athletic Commission, National Boxing Association, A. A. U., The National Hockey League, Madison Square Garden Corporation, the owners of Giants, Yankees, Dodgers, and others identified with sport.

The leading business men of the biggest city in the world fully realize what it means to business in general to bring to the city outstanding sports events. If New York is benefited by a big sports event just think how much more in proportion would be Boston and smaller cities. Hotels, restaurants, theaters, railroad and steamship lines, department stores, merchants of all kinds benefit by hundreds of thousands of dollars by big sporting events. For instance, railroads entering Chicago took in more than a million dollars through the Dempsey-Tunney fight. How many millions do you think the Big Fight crowd left in Chicago hotels, restaurants, stores, barber shops, cigar and newspaper stands?

One Boston fighter, Jack Sharkey, has poured millions of dollars into New York hotels, restaurants, and stores. It was not alone Jim Farley's personal friendship to Sharkey that induced the N. Y. State Athletic Commission to give every aid in arranging bouts for the Boston heavy. Farley himself was prodded and urged by the special committee of the Broadway Merchants Association. What encouragement has Jack Sharkey been given to fight in his home town of Boston? And why does Ernie Schaaf, now graduated to as great, perhaps a greater, gate attraction than Sharkey, now go to New York, Chicago and other cities for his major bouts?

"Boston will not pay what New York and Chicago pays for its big sport attractions," we hear some one explain. "Boston will not stand for $5 and $10 tops." Piffle! Has Boston ever tried it? Does New York jam Madison Square for hockey like Boston jams the Boston Garden for the Bruins and the Cubs? Football sellouts at the Harvard Stadium are far from a rarity. Put a big enough ring attraction on at Braves Field and New England fans will pack it until it bulges out at the sides. New England fans are not going to pay $5 for a second rate attraction. They don't want any shoddy goods foisted upon them. But put a really BIG fight on in Boston—Schaaf vs. Carnera, Schaaf vs. the winner of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight—and see whether Boston even in these parlous days of depression would stand for a big "top" or not. That recent Schaaf-Stribling fight in Chicago would have sold out the Boston Garden at the same prices they charged in Chicago. Why didn't Boston get it? And just think how railroads, hotels, restaurants and stores would have profited if Boston had got it.

Boston is big enough, progressive enough, to stop fooling around the small time stuff. Boston promoters, officials, business men, should go after the big money. Boston has the big fighters. It should have the BIG fights. Big fights are not arranged over night. They require months of preparation. The good old summer time, when the big fights are staged, is not so far away. The time to start the ball rolling for big summer time fights is now, not after New York, Chicago and other burgs already have bagged them.

Boston will not get the BIG fights, nor Boston business benefit by them, without closer co-operation among business men, the State Boxing Commission and the promoters. It is just as much the duty of the State Boxing Commission to help bring BIG fights to Massachusetts as it is to assign referees and judges to picayune shows in fly-by-night clubs operating throughout the State. With Boston having two such BIG fighters as Jack Sharkey and Ernie Schaaf the task of getting the BIG fights is, or should be, lightened. Boston shouldn't be playing second fistic fiddle to any burg in the world.

Olympics Democratic Sports Institution

This article by Lawson Robertson, Olympics head coach, is one of a series which appears exclusively in the Boston Evening American until the conclusion of the Olympic games this summer. Robertson, former Olympics star competitor and coach, guides the U. S. athletes against the world's best this year. Watch for his articles on these sports pages. Next one appears on Monday.

By LAWSON ROBERTSON

They had moratoriums as far back as the eighth century B. C. Everything else was officially "off" during the period of the great Olympic Games.

These were held within the Altis, enclosing a portion of the plain of Olympia, on the plain of Ellis. Wars ceased, trading stopped, schools and theaters were closed, and all gathered to watch the competition.

Peace reigned in this pageantry of sports that has survived, with [illegible]. Noblemen, warriors, tradesmen and slaves sat together cheering and urging the athletes to greater effort.

These games were [illegible] for nearly [illegible] hundred years. Every four years the countries would congregate.

French Sportsman Revived Olympics

In 1896 Baron Pierre de Coubertin, a great French sportsman, had convinced the world that the Olympic games were worthy of revival.

Thanks to de Coubertin, the Olympic games were revived. Since 1896 nine Olympiads have been held. The United States has been granted the privilege of conducting the Tenth Olympiad in Los Angeles, Cal.

Here the best in the world will meet—democratically. Lords and lackeys can compete together. No discrimination is made.

Los Angeles Ready for World's Games

Los Angeles has prepared for her world-wide guests in a manner fit for the greatest sportsmen and athletes. A stadium has been especially constructed to accommodate 11,000 spectators. A village has been built to house the visiting athletes. Everything has been done.

The United States has been working for the Tenth Olympiad since 1920, at which time Los Angeles was awarded the games. The good will is keeping up in all quarters, and assurances have been had that the majority of the countries will enter full teams.

On July 30, 5000 athletes, men and women, will line up in the huge stadium for the opening ceremony.

"We swear that we are amateurs competing for the honor of our nation and the glory of sport."

Such is the oath taken by every Olympian. In 1928 Douglas Lowe of England won the 800 meter run in new record time. He was followed across the line by Engelhart, a German.

The German was the first to congratulate Lowe and arm in arm they walked off the field together—[illegible] and vanquished. They were Olympians, worthy of the honor they had [illegible].

MAULER SLAMS TWO FOES

Cincinnati, O., March 4 (US).—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, advanced farther along the comeback trail here when he administered severe beatings to two opponents in exhibition bouts.

The erstwhile ring king battered and hooked his way to newspaper decisions over George Trinkle, Oklahoma City heavyweight, and Ray Vegas of Grand Forks, N. D.

Dempsey weighed 193 pounds, Trinkle 191 and Vegas 215.

A capacity crowd enthusiastically cheered the former champion.

Tom Jenkins Arrives in Brown Camp

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 4 (AP).—Arrival late yesterday of Tom Jenkins, in-and-out gardener from Massachusetts, reduced to 11 the number of players missing from the St. Louis Browns training camp.

Despite the fact he has only 15 men in camp, Manager Bill Killefer is confident he has the making of a better team than he had last year.

Benefit Mat Show at Dartmouth Gym

Hanover, N. H., March 4.—Tomorrow afternoon Dartmouth is staging a benefit show at the college gym, with Gus Sonnenberg wrestling Jack Ganson, Jack Spellman facing Hoffman, and Lou Brouillard boxing Al Mello.

Sportsmanship Prize Belongs to Dartmouth Athlete

New York, March 4 (AP)—Hal Mackey of Dartmouth should be an outstanding contender for the sportsmanship prize of the month.

Last fall Mackey, an end on Dartmouth's football team, was troubled by a trick knee. He wore a special steel brace in the game against Columbia until one of the Columbia players complained that it was dangerous equipment.

Now Mackey has sent the brace to Capt. Lou Bender of the Columbia basketball team, who has been having difficulties with an injured knee all season. Bender tried the brace in practice and found it so helpful he plans to use it in the game against Dartmouth tonight. Mackey, a center, will be playing against him.

PARKS HURT; OUT OF I. C.'S

William Parks, Boston College sprinter, pulled up with a strained tendon during a trial dash at the Heights and consequently will be unable to compete in the intercollegiate championships tomorrow night in New York.

His place on the team was taken by Edward Carey, star quarter miler, who had also been entered in the sprints at the I. C. 4 A.'s. Carey will toe the mark in the 70-yard dash along with John McManus, another member of the Eagles' one [illegible] team.

A squad of nine athletes accompanied by the Rev. Charles Rodda, S. J., director of athletics at the Heights, Capt. Jack Ryder and Manager John Tricole, will leave for New York early this afternoon.

B. C. will have entries in the dash, high hurdles, weights, two mile run and the two mile relay.

Schoolboy Slants

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

R. J. Ohrenberger, former Boston College star athlete who takes the place of Leo Daley at Boston English, will try to keep up the good work that the latter accomplished.

Freddie Kennedy, former all-star athlete at Tufts College, is doing a great job at Weymouth high. He has won 13 out of 15 basketball games this winter, which is quite a record for a small school.

That North Shore basketball tournament at Danvers high school March 10, 11 and 12, will pack them in. Charlie Vye will handle things and the officials will be picked the first of next week. One man sure to be picked, a man who has given the basketball fans perfect satisfaction for years, is Charlie McGhee.

Salem high will go in for track in a big way this spring. Bill Broderick will handle the boys. A few years back Salem was represented only by a one-man track team, Anderson, a high jumper. This boy used to go around to all the big meets all by himself.

Two boys making good at basketball this season are Adzigian of Lawrence Academy and McGovern of Worcester Academy. The latter was the star of the Tech tournament while playing for Lynn English and Adzigian was the whole works at Stoneham high.

The General Electric Apprentice School is to abandon all athletics this spring. It may decide to play football in the fall, and if so, Ed Brawley, former Peabody high coach, will be teaching the boys.

Jackie Heffernan, ex-Lynn Classical star athlete, is coaching the Troy Conference Prep School and doing a remarkable job. Jack got a great kick out of defeating Clark School with Gentawicz, Moriarty and Cross on the team, as they were on the team that had been his greatest rival, Lynn English.

Soon the writer will pick an all-star basketball team from the Tech tournament and North Shore tournament players.

LOVES SPORT OF CHASING 'LITTLE PILL'

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 4 (INS).—Babe Ruth, greatest baseball player of all time, may retire from baseball and become a business man golfer.

The only condition Babe makes is that the Yankees win the pennant this year. If they fail, he will give the game one more whirl. He wants to play in one more World Series.

There has been talk from time to time of the Babe tiring of golf and quitting baseball, but it remained for the Great Bambino to say that even now he was making plans for his [illegible]. He may come back after that but only as manager.

The Babe himself told the writer of his impending retirement from baseball. We were sitting on the sixth tee at Pasadena yesterday.

"This game is too sweet to give up," he said.

Babe Calls Golf a Sweet Game

"Well, I'm not giving it up," he continued. "I'm just beginning to take it up. One more year with the Yankees, one more World Series, and the Babe is through with baseball. It will be Babe Ruth, golfer, then.

"I'm going to become a business man golfer. George Von Elm is doing pretty well, and I guess I could do just about as well. I've had a lot of offers to tour the country. I've talked some to Johnny Farrell and Billy Burke. It would be great just to play golf."

The Babe stood up and swung his driver [illegible] The [illegible] sailed sweetly through a perfect arc.

"It would be sweet to play golf that way all the time," he soliloquized, "nothing to worry you, just go on and play. I'd make money, too.

"This is going to be my greatest hitting year and a pennant with a World's Series victory. There's a valedictory.

Manager's Job Also Appeals to Bambino

"I've been in nine World Series and I've done pretty well. I want to be in ten World Series and then I'll be willing to retire," said the Babe. "The record books tell their own story of what I've done.

"Maybe after a couple of years of golf I'll get the fever and want to come back."

"You mean as a manager, of course, Babe?" said your agent.

"Sure thing, as a manager," replied the greatest slugger baseball has ever known. "I think I'd do pretty good as a manager. Gosh, I've seen the game from every side."

Agawam Crushes Amherst Quintet

Amherst, March 4.—Agawam crushed Amherst high 33 to 9 and Williamstown beat Hopkins Academy 22 to 15 to become semi-final opponents in tonight's play in the small high school basketball tourney at Mass State.

Hopkins Academy gave Williamstown a battle but could not match the team play of the Berkshire five. Bates was the high scorer for the winners, while John Bemben and Pekala starred for Hopkins.

DIFFER ON A. L. FLAG RACE

New York, March 4 (INS)—Perusal of two sets of betting odds on the 1932 major league pennant races discloses that there exists throughout the country a growing respect for the prowess of Joe McCarthy's New York Yankees.

While in the Middle West the Athletics are again picked to beat out the New Yorkers, Wall Street has installed the Yanks slight favorites to break the three-year domination of the Mackmen in the American League.

The two sets of figures for the American League race follow:

Western odds.		Eastern odds.
Athletics	1-1	Yankees	5-2
Yankees	3-2	Athletics	3-1
Washington	4-1	Washington	6-1
Cleveland	8-1	Cleveland	10-1
Detroit	10-1	Browns	25-1
Browns	50-1	Detroit	40-1
Red Sox	100-1	White Sox	75-1
White Sox	100-1	Red Sox	100-1

It will be noted that there is a difference of opinion regarding the chances of every club except Washington and Cleveland.

In the National League, there is a striking similarity of opinion, the ranking of all eight clubs being the same in both sets of odds, with the St. Louis Cardinals picked to repeat.

The figures follow:

Cardinals	1-1
Giants	5-2
Brooklyn	3-1
Cubs	4-1
Pittsburgh	10-1
Braves	40-1
Phillies	50-1
Cincinnati	100-1

When Kid Williams Won Title From Coulon

COULON IN TITLE DAYS

This series of "Finishes of Old Time Fights" appears exclusively in the sport pages of the Boston Evening American.

Today we give you the story of Kid Williams' three-round victory over Johnny Coulon for the bantamweight championship of the world. The battle was staged in Los Angeles on June 9, 1914.

By W. S. FARNSWORTH

As far as the ring is concerned, veterans can't come back. The meeting between Williams and Coulon was more [illegible] a championship fight a few [illegible] and a [illegible] was lacking.

Johnny Kid Williams, the Baltimore Wolf [illegible] won the world's bantamweight [illegible] Coulon [illegible] than [illegible] one of the [illegible] exhibitions ever seen in the [illegible] Vernon [illegible] In 1914 the bantamweight poundage was 116 pounds. Today it is 118.

Blow Sends Coulon Sprawling

Williams scored a clean knockout in the third round. A ripping left to the body and a twin right hand clip to the chin sent Coulon sprawling to the floor.

The beaten champion lay on his face with his little arms wound about his head, while Referee Charlie Eyton counted the seconds off. The Coast referee never counted slower in his life.

At the count of ten Coulon tried to prop himself up but fell back again as Eyton shouted "OUT!"

Was a Pitiable Spectacle

The Chicago boy was crying [illegible] as he was lifted to his feet. He stumbled [illegible] chair and sat in his corner weeping for a full minute before he controlled himself sufficiently to walk across the ring to congratulate the victor. And there Coulon had to stand for a full half minute before the joy-wild supporters of the new champion could be shoved away to make room for the two boys to meet in a handclasp.

Instead of a sensational struggle for the title it was a pitiable spectacle of a little old man, almost passed in his efforts before the tigerish Williams, tottering about the canvas, a whipped man from the first tap of the gong.

Most of the [illegible]

"I knew Big Ed very well and can truthfully say I never met a more pleasing personality in my entire baseball career," said Manager Bill McKechnie.

"Last summer while he was recovering from a broken toe he used to visit the Braves' clubhouse regularly when the Sox were on the road. The boys and I used to get a great kick out of listening to his Southern wit.

Morris Appreciated McKechnie's Help

"I instructed my trainers to rub his legs occasionally. It was no more than any manager would do for a visiting ball player, but if I had given Ed a fortune he could not have been more grateful.

"He was a great pitcher when he was right. His only fault was that he never grew up. He was always a boy at heart and just refused to take life seriously.

"It's a shame that such a fine fellow had to come to a tragic end.

"I extend my deepest sympathy to his wife and children. Also to Bob Quinn. The Red Sox owner certainly has had more than his share of hard luck and all of it undeserved."

STATE ST. Hears:

That some insiders are accepting profits. The average trader who has followed their operations since early January does not need to become alarmed. It is thought the institution of stops protecting about 60 per cent of their paper gains will be sufficient for the present. However, further purchases can be postponed pending some indications of a spring pickup in the key industries.

"Old-line houses are raising the differentials on transfers. Why the rest of the country should pay tribute on sales and purchases to the Empire State is not entirely clear to outside observers. CREEPING RISE RESUMED, BUT IS CHECKED

New York, March 4—A creeping rise was resumed in Wall St. trading today. The stock market crept up close to the best levels of 1932, as bulls were encouraged by further evidence of the restoration of banking stability.

The list encountered a little setback in the first hour, but offerings were readily absorbed and early losses erased. Active buying developed after midday

BULLS IN UTILITIES

Among favored groups were the utilities, chemicals, food and merchandising shares.

Bullish activity switched into the utility group after midday, and such issues as Public Service of N. J., American Water Works, Consolidated Gas and Brooklyn Union Gas mounted 1 to more than 2 to new tops for the year.

Stocks turned heavy after the reduction in General Electric's dividend but selling was slow and losses were confined to moderate proportions. In the earlier trading there had been rather general advances of a point or so in pivotal issues.

On the setback, General Electric lost a point net and there were similar declines in American Telephone, U. S. Steel, American Can, Union Pacific, Westinghouse and Allied Chemical. People's Gas touched a new low, off about 3. Transactions approximated 1,600,000 shares.

GEN. ELECTRIC CUTS

General Electric directors did the conservative thing when they put the stock on a $1 annual basis, inasmuch as the previous $1.60 rate had not been earned in the past year.

The market remained largely professional, but some brokers reported traces of public buying. The bidding up of such issues as utilities, chain stores and food shares, representing relatively stable industries, was apparently in an effort to attract a public following. Several of the earnings statements for 1931 of the utility and food companies have been among the more favorable.

Woolworth returned a fair sales report for February, showing a decline from last year of only 3 per cent, partially attributable to the fact that there was an extra shopping day.

Stockholders at the annual meeting of Montgomery Ward told that there had been some pickup in the last 10 days.

Weekly mercantile reviews continued to report scant change in general conditions, although the strengthening of the banking structure, and indications that commercial credit will be more plentiful when needed, were re- [illegible] better feeling all around. It was [illegible] dropped off sharply in February, reaching the lowest levels since last Jury.

The copper market and shares stiffened, coincident with the withdrawal of the temporary rules of copper exporters, which had permitted custom smelters to dispose of sotcks under the regular price.

Export copper at the record low of 5⅞ cents a pound was cleaned up, and the price restored to 6⅛.

GEN. ELECTRIC ON A $1 BASIS

New York, March 4 (AP)—Directors of General Electric Company today reduced the quarterly dividend on the common stock to 25 cents from 40 cents, thus putting the share on an annual basis of $1, against $1.60. Wall st. had rather expected a sut in view of General Electric's smaller earnings.

The $1.60 annual rate was established in the second quarter of 1930 after the four-for-one split of the common shares earlier in that year.

Prior to this change in the capitalization the company had paid $4 annually in regular dividends from the third quarter of 1927, with extras of $1 each in 1927 and 1928 and two extra payments of $1 each in 1929.

Shattuck Planning Change in Capital

At the annual meeting of stockholders of Frank G. Shattuck Co. on March 23 a vote will be taken on theplan to reduce the stated capital of the company to $15,125,000 from $19,975,000, the sum of $4,850,000 by which capital is reduced to be supplied in the reduction of goodwill to $1. The latter item is now valued on the books at $4,850,001.

Tishman Realty's Net Loss $961,778

Tishman Realty & Construction Co. for the year 1931 reports a net loss of $961,778 after interest, depreciation, and deduction of $915,450 loss on sale of properties, etc., as against a net profit of $899,567 in 1930, equal to $2.25 a share on 400,000 shares then outstanding.

Packard Shipments in February Rise

New York, March 4 (AP)—Packard Motor Car Co. shipped 2150 cars in February, an increase of 270 over February, 1931. The schedule for March is said to be the same as February.

Truscon Steel Co. Reports Net Loss

New York, March 4—Truscon Steel Co. for the year 1931 reports a net loss of $616,631 after depreciation, taxes, etc., as against a net profit of $1,200,531, equal to $1.44 a common share in 1930.

Optimistic Trend Seen in Nation's Finance

Washington, March 4 (AP)—A sharp decrease in the number of bank failures, with one National Bank suspending operations in 16 days, was hailed today by treasury officials as marking a distinctly optimistic trend in the national's financial condition.

Further encouragement was seen in the fact that in February all bank failures amounted to 115, as compared with 334 failures in January. Officials expressed gratification over the decrease in suspensions and said three banks resumed operations in February.

At the same time, the Federal Reserve Board reported a further shrinkage in currency circulation, with a drop for the week of $9,000,000 but there still remained more than $1,000,000,000 more currency in circulation than there was a year ago.

Coca-Cola Co. for 1931 reports net of $14,023,622, equivalent after Class A dividends to $11.82 a share on 1,000,000 shares of no-par common. This is a new high, exceeding by 3.7 per cent the previous record of $13,515,535, or $11.15 a share in 1930. Last year was the eighth successive year in which net increased and the seventh in which earnings have broken all previous records.

ADVICE TO INVESTORS IS FREE

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

LOWER EARNINGS

E. R., Newton—What is your opinion on buying Chesapeake & Ohio at current prices?

Ans.—Not all investors should buy common stocks. Chesapeake & Ohio has paid dividends in varying amounts from 1899 with the exception of two years, 1915 and 1921. The current $2.50 annual rate was inaugurated October 1, 1930. It was covered in 1931 by earning of $3.47 a share, against $4.44 in 1930. During the past eight years, including 1931, average net has been around $4.75 a share.

HAS A LOSS

M. M., Boston—I am holding 100 shares Socony-Vacuum at higher levels. Would you advise a retention or sale?

Ans.—We have no means of knowing future market prices. Both units of the present Socony-Vacuum organization have had excellent records but oil-trade unsettlement and keen competition tend to retard development of earnings power. A dividend of 40 cents a share paid September 15, 1931, was reduced to 25 cents in the December quarter. Similar payment will be distributed March 15 to holders of record February 19.

YIELD HIGH

C. S., Medford—Please let me have your opinion on buying Western Union. Also, what are the latest earnings.

Ans.—Western Union Telegraph is selling at a level to yield about 15 per cent. This indicates lack of confidence in the current $6 dividend, established January 15 as a reduction from $8 paid from 1926. Though the company has an uninterrupted dividend record dating back to 1857 and earnings for the past 12 years, including 1931, have averaged about $12 a share, net for last year dropped to $5.98 a share, compared with $9.03 in 1930.

NET DROPS

M. R., Quincy—What is you opinion on the outlook for Standard Brands? I bought 50 shares in 1929 at 42.

Ans.—We know of no method for determining future market prices. The present Standard Brands Company was organized in August, 1929, but the common stock has not attained investment rating because of close proximity of earnings to dividend distributions. Earnings of $1.08 a share in 1931 did not cover the present dividend rate. Net for 1930 was $1.22 a share against $1.37 in 1929. Jan. 3, 1931, the stock was put on a $1.20 annual basis, contrasted with $1.50 paid from October 1, 1929.

OMITS DIVIDENDS

S. K., Milton—I have been advised to pick up some Packard Motor at present prices. Is it a good investment?

Ans.—Though Packard Motor can point to an excellent record earnings have been unfavorably affected by the prolonged slump in the automobile industry. Two reductions in dividends occurred during 1931, and the directors have just voted to omit quarterly payment of 10 cents a share expected March 12. Net income in 1930 equalled 60 cents a share against $1.29 in 1929. Operations for the first three quarters of 1931 resulted in a small profit, but estimated loss for the full year is about $3,000,000.

MAY MEAN CHANGE

E. G., Boston—I am a working man, well on in years. What would be your advice on a proposed purchase of Union Pacific at present levels?

Ans.—Though Union Pacific has paid dividends from 1901, in all likelihood the present 10 per cent rate paid from 1918, will suffer some downward revision. The high yield points to a change. For twelve months ended December 31, 1931, net operating income of $24,702,431 contrasted with $35,297,722 in similar preceding period. Earnings of $15.63 in 1930 contrasted with $20.37 in 1929. During the past ten years, 1926 to 1930, inclusive, earnings have averaged approximately $16 a share.

EARNINGS LOWER

J. L., Melrose—As a reader of your paper I shall appreciate advice on buying Norfolk & Western.

Ans.—Norfolk & Western has paid dividends in varying amounts, with extras, from 1901. Current $10 annual rate was established March, 1930. An extra of $2 a share paid December 19, 1930, was duplicated December 19, 1931. Though earnings of $14.25 a share in 1931 took care of dividend distributions comfortably, they were considerably less than the 1930 figure of $21.96 and $29.06 shown in 1929.

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

Writin' Folks Is Folks, Too!

My week's enforced sojourn at the Sobolshevistic penthouse in Elmhurst was not without its beneficial results. I took up reading again. After all these years, yessir, ol' Massa Sobol actually read books through from cover to cover. Now, it isn't my intention to bore you with the titles of the books I read or dwell at any length—their peculiarities, their hobbies, their methods of work. With the aid of some of my literary acquaintances I dug up some facts, and when I assembled them they sounded interesting.

For instance, Peter B. Kyne (remember the Cappy Ricks yarns?) is yachting in the South Seas. Ernest Hemmingway is deep-sea fishing off the Florida keys, and Edna Ferber is busy digging up a story of the famous old Dictator of Mexico, President Diaz—she's just returned from down below the Rio Grande. Joseph Hergesheimer, weary of Pennsylvania Dutch and Newport, is turning out a tale of Bermuda and spending his Winter there, and Tom Gill, who scribbles off those exciting serials about gay banditti and gangster Romeos, is cruising around in the Southwestern Indies, readying a Caribbean tale.

Another wandering minstrel is Louis Bromfield. Louis, Mary, his wife; the children, the dogs and the servants (and this fella was once a newspaperman!) have been on the move since a year ago last October, when they abandoned New York for a chalet high in the Swiss Alps. Last summer Bromfield wrote a novel or two in Senlis, where he owns a villa overlooking Paris. Today he is yachting with none other than the Maharajah of Baroda, who is drifting about the blue Mediterranean with a house party, unawares of the depression. Gold plates — not gold-plated plates, but gold gold plates—off which to eat their beans. When the floating party is over, Bromfield will come back to earth, somewhere along the Riviera, to spend a few days visiting Edith Wharton and then back to the chalet to complete a play.

In Jamaica is Harold Bell Wright, not so much to sample rum—for he's a teetotaler, but because unemployment is so bad in Tucson, Arizona, his home town, the home folks kept putting him on committees for the relief, exhausting all his time. So he hied himself off to Jamaica, but in a weak moment pledged the donation of his entire income from his next novel to the unemployment fund. "Letters to My Son" will be the title of the book—autobiographical, they tell me. Incidentally, in Jamaica, Wright is forced to forego his pet hobby. In his Tucson estate he has a forge and is one of the most skillful of the amateur ironwrights in the country. His study, in fact, is made of wrought iron, created by himself at his own forge. In spare moments he designs novelties in iron chandeliers.

Another ex-newspaperman, Nunnally Johnson, high up now on the mazuma tree, looking down on us poor monkeys, lives in Miami Beach, where he entertains such gents as Cyrus H. K. Curtis, a former copyboy for a Philadelphia paper; Ed Howe, who writes, they tell me, for a Kansas sheet, and Bill Lengel, who has something to do with Cosmopolitan. Bill, by the way, sent me over a copy of his new book, "Forever and Ever," to cheer me out of my grippe.

Nearer home, Lowell Thomas isn't feeling so forte. A game of badminton on New Year's eve with Dave Hampton did for him, as the saying goes among us literates. He's confined—or was—to his cot in his 57th street apartment. Irving Cobb's wrinkling his schnozzle, extra chin and broad brow over a mystery novel—something new and blackand in his moments of reaction is pitching quoits and organizing a horseshoe club.

Incidentally, while Bromfield has been squawking because there hasn't been much snow in Switzerland, so that the skiing is blah, Royal Brown is worrying because it's raining up in New Hampshire. Brown is a ski fanatic and only last week he flew 10 miles from hill top to hill top near his home at Fitzwilliams. Lost in the North Woods is that shy fellow "Red" Lewis—Sinclair, of the Nobel prize—deep in the deep snows of his Vermont home, where there isn't any telephone to interrupt him while he's busy creating Babbitts and Arrowsmiths—and where Theodore Dreiser's thoughts can't be transmitted to him. As for Dreiser, the Big Bad Boy of American letters, he's been rather subdued since his Kentucky misadventure. Which reminds me O. O. McIntyre sent me a note the other day in connection with Dreiser—get me to tell you about it. Once in a while—to get back to Dreiser—he goes to a fight at Madison Square Garden, where he roots for a sanguinary K. O. And occasionally you can find him in a corner of a 55th st. speak. Or at an opening night—I saw him a few weeks ago with George Jean Nathan. Both left at the end of the first act.

Writers—the woods are full of them. Sling a few words together, preferably on an old, battered typewriter; mix up the grmamar, spell any old way, drop a capital occasionally—and if you're lucky, the gates of heaven open . . . yachts, Palm Beach, gold plates, leisure. There's another side to it, of course. Flaubert, hunting for one word for 10 years until it bounced into his head as the coach in which he was riding jolted over a rut in a country road; Edgar Wallace killing himself with the labor of creating mountains of words; Rupert Hughes poring over thousands of manuscripts, documents and books, to write his life of Washington, sacrifices his eyesight; Hergesheimer, moving to Washington, spends three months in the Library of Congress to find material for his biography of General Phil Sheridan—and almost goes under with a nervous breakdown.

I'm just rambling on with no definite idea in mind. If you're an autograph fiend, you ought to get after Fannie Hurst. She writes in red crayon on note paper engraved with her name in bold red letters at the top—and she usually draws pictures at the foot of her letter to you illustrating her mood. I still have the one she sent me from somewhere in Turkey—or maybe it was Berlin. If the lips curve up—in the drawing—she's happy; down—she's blue; straight—she's determined. Homer Croy writes notes on anything that comes handy—butcher paper, tissue paper or, if you're an editor, gold-brocaded wall paper. Vivian Cosby, who's the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter, sends her intimate friends letters with either a spring in them that jumps out at you when you tear open the envelope—or sneeze powder.

RARE RUGS ON DISPLAY

All the glories of the golden age of rug-weaving are reproduced at a special display of Karastan rugs in the rug department of the Jordan Marsh Company this week.

Each day at 3 p. m., Nachon H. Keljik, an authority on Oriental rug-weaving, lectures on "The Romantic Ages of Rug-Weaving."

In an Oriental setting, like a mart of ancient Persia, is this marvelous group of reproductions of Oriental materpieces even to the musicians in eastern costumes who sing appropriate selections by well known composers.

The showing includes reproductions of some of the most famous designs in the world, so finely woven that it is almost impossible to tell them from the originals. It includes the famous Ispahans, the equally renowned Kirmans, and Kashans, "the perfect rug."

Prayers of Country for Safety of Lindbergh Boy

The prayers of this country go out for the safety and recovery of a baby boy, only 20 months old, torn from his loving mother and fond father by criminals.

This baby, with his golden hair, dimples and blue eyes, mean to Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh what every baby means to every good man and woman.

It means everything.

It meant suspense and suffering in the critical period of birth. It meant relief when the baby and mother came through safely from "the valley of the shadow." It meant joy and exaltation in the power of creation. It has meant nights of concern when the illnesses of infancy beset it. It has meant days of happiness when strength has overcome its frailty and as it blossomed toward the time of boyhood.

It means life itself.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh have gone through all the successive periods of doubt and of happiness which are the experience of every father and mother. But they are today suffering all the anxiety and anguish which come to few of us.

This baby boy was their life, their pride and their hope.

Their happiness has been converted to anguish by the detestable work of foul fiends.

Kidnaping is a foul crime. There can be excuse for the emotional crimes. But kidnaping is as deliberate as it is cruel. The crime is premeditated. It is plotted and planned. It has every element of viciousness. It is cruel because of the anguish it visits upon the parents. It is abominable because it destroys the safety and jeopardizes the very life of an innocent baby incapable of offering resistance or of protecting itself.

Our first prayer is that this chubby baby, with his golden hair, dimples and blue eyes, will be returned safely and in firm health to the anxious parents.

Our second is that ample punishment will be imposed upon the criminals as an example which may preclude others of their vicious ilk from inflicting similar suffering upon other good fathers and mothers like the Lindberghs.

Open the Doors!

The Committee on Power and Light of the Massachusetts House of Representatives will bring no credit to itself nor will it command the respect of the public by private hearings on the important legislation to regulate holding companies.

This matter affects the pocketbook of every man and woman in this Commonwealth. Holding corporations have jimmied their way into the public utility situation in this State until they now control some of our oldest and richest gas and electric companies. The rates for gas and electricity spread into every home. They are an important part of the family budget. These rates can mean the difference between profit and loss to many of our industrial factories and commercial stores.

Any corporation which can exert such a wide influence upon the life of a people ought to be regulated by the State. The national House of Representatives, under the Democratic leadership of Speaker Garner, is holding PUBLIC HEARINGS on this very subject. Ours should not be in star chamber. Open the doors!

The Roll Will Be Called

A resolution providing for State liquor control was sleeping, as the drys thought, securely in the Judiciary Committee of the House. But they were disappointed.

The resolution will come before the House March 14 and Congressman INSINCERE and his colleagues, Representatives AFRAID-OF-HIS-SHADOW and NOT-ABOVE-A-WHISPER, will be faced by the dread necessity of revealing their life-long convictions on the great issue of Prohibition.

This is a big step in the right direction. The resolution, which provides for a resubmission of the question to the people, will probably fail of adoption, notwithstanding the evidence afforded by every recent Congressional election, and more lately by the impressive poll of the Literary Digest, now in progress, that popular sentiment is overwhelmingly against Prohibition.

But the question will come to a vote. The roll will be called. We will see how our elected representatives represent us. The ground for the skulker and the evader is being narrowed.

The question is moving steadily toward re-examination and a sane solution.

War That Should Succeed

Catholics, Jews and Protestants of the United States and Canada will meet in joint convention in Washington from Monday to Wednesday "to organize for war on religious prejudice and to promote understanding."

Men and women very prominent in the clerical and lay forces of these religious denominations will consult with each other on the means to eliminate intolerance.

This is a good war. It aims not to destroy. It seeks no new territory or trade routes or mandates. Its goal is kindliness, happiness and understanding for millions of our people. Therefore, it is entitled to be crowned with the standards of victory.

New York Day by Day

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, Mar. 4—Thoughts while strolling. Donald Ogden meets Robert C. Benchley. Now, ha, ha, the quips will fly. Ho! Ho! I've never seen Mrs. Grover Whalen. Or Mrs. Gilbert Miller. George Jessel's whacking big cheroot. DeWolf Hopper's son, Jack—vice president of a bank.

Paul D. Cravath, a Berlin Heights, O., boy, who made good in the city. James Stillman is the last of the saunterers. It takes an Englishman to wear one of those sweater vests. One of my favorite ladies—Peggy Hoyt. Nothing so comic to me as a feather boa. I love an arcade.

Ethel Merman's face is perfectly square. C. T. Brainard of Harper's. Once a newspaperman, too. Ben Hampton's widow—the former Claire Adams of the films. Sign: "Daylight Dancing." What—no dancing in the dark? I've got to do better than that that to funny this up. The lovely Clare Boothe Brokaw.

Years have touched Grace George lightly. Once she was a double for the nicest lady I know, ahem! One word description of Mrs. Brock Pemberton—regal. Gabe Hess and beautiful bride, Linda Watkins. A dozen fellows from Kansas look like Senator Capper. Roxy's daughter, Beta.

Otto Kahn's 5th avenue mansion recalls the Marcus Loew story. A year after buying a Long Island estate, Mr. Loew opened what he thought was a closet door. And found 18 more rooms. With all the depression shows, why not a musical by George Gershwin, Jerome Kern and Irving Berlin?

Nobody wears white fur like Julia Hoyt. Or an evening dress like Earl Benham. All of a sudden I'm famished for pot roast and noodles. That perky boutique "The Giftery." The gorgeous dull red of a Central Park sunset. The frosty fuzz on dry twigs. And dusk withers into night.

A current play has a boulevardier explaining he has a good wife but moaning she ran off with his closest pal. "Too good to be true," snaps a cynic.

Don Clarke, in his cubhood, was sent to interview a famous man. Waiting in an ante-room for hours after sending in his name, he approached a gum-chewing phone girl. "I'm a reporter," he explained. "Well, it's no use worrying," she replied.

* * *

It occurs to me I have never seen Henry Hull, one of the very best actors, on the street, in a cafe or peacocking at any of the other haunts where the otiose theatrical are usually in evidence. Maybe that's why he always has a first-rate job.

An executive tells this story. He spends many hours at his desk daily and noticed when looking up suddenly things spun in a dizzy whirl. Specialists found nothing physically wrong, but told him to slow up. Two weeks ago his swivel chair broke and a stationary chair was substituted. He has not had a dizzy spell since.

A Manhattan dipsomaniac of higher social brackets does not cleave to usual alcoholic theorems. She goes on a brandy bender every six months, isolating herself for the period of inebriacy in a de luxe hotel. Instead of customary filth and disarray, she is the personification of neatness. She dons fresh negligees at intervals, wears her hair neatly coiffed, is rouged and powdered daintily, and about her quarters is the delicate, refined scent of orris and old lavender. Yet during such lapses she is utterly blotto, her talk a blurry, hiccupy jumble.

Radio announcers suggest the ghosts of Corse Payton and other scenery eating actors. They try to circus up a program by ranting. My idea of a perfect radio interlude is a calm, swift and simple announcement at the beginning and end, and that's all. Or am I cackling through the chapeau again?

Another bleat—and I'll toddle to the park with the dogs. Ever notice a New York trunk store usually opens with a Grand Closing Sale?

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

A Chance With Life

YOU WANT LIFE. You do not know exactly what life is, but you want it.

Once you had it—had it unconsciously, without effort. There was a call, a glitter, a wonder waiting just over the horizon; within you, an eager, yearning tide. The day was not measured in hours. It was measured in desire and excitement, in adventures and in curious explorations. Nothing was common. Nothing was uninteresting. You had your nose in everything.

Then, your heart was open to all the world. Every human was a fellow adventurer. You might battle and brawl, but there were no walls between you. Consciousness was an open thoroughfare. You gave yourself to life, and life gave itself to you.

And then, gradually, there came a change. The call grew faint; the glitter dimmed; the warmed tide lagged and failed. You withdrew into yourself. Walls rose around you. You began to be cautious, suspicious, timid, fussy, resentful; each day more lonely; each day more bored.

And now you cry "I want to live!" But you have lost the secret. You are cold, and nothing comes to warm you. You are unsatisfied, but nothing fills your hunger or brightens the drab monotony of the days.

"It is all over," you say bitterly. "There is nothing left. That joy and eagerness I felt as a child were simply the physical energy of a young animal. As soon as I stopped being a child, those adventures stopped. They had to stop. You can't feel that way after you're young. Well, I might as well make the best of it—but what a farce life is!"

You're wrong! Adventures do not stop UNTIL WE MAKE THEM STOP. The joy of life is not just a matter of youthful blood pressure. Life can be as eager and as open at fifty as it was at fifteen. IF WE WILL LET IT BE EAGER AND OPEN.

But we, ourselves, close the thoroughfare of life. We close it with our selfishness and fear, our self-indulgence and conceit. Out of these things we build the walls that shut us in; but outside the walls, the same old mystery waits, the same wonder and glory and delight.

HOW CAN YOU FIND LIFE AGAIN?

By going out of it. By putting aside the habits that have built walls about you, and coming out into life, into new adventure and companionship, as you did when you were a child.

You didn't live INSIDE YOURSELF when you were a child. You lived OUTSIDE YOURSELF. You lived out in the middle of things, and you took things and people as they came. You didn't fuss and fret and weigh and ponder and try to fit things to your petty personal pattern.

YOU TOOK A CHANCE! YOU TOOK A CHANCE WITH YOURSELF—WITH PEOPLE—WITH LIFE.

Of course you did plenty fool things; made many mistakes. But you didn't make that most tragic mistake of all. YOU DIDN'T SHUT OUT LIFE. You suffered penalties and punishments; BUT YOU HAD LIFE AND THE JOY OF LIFE, AND THAT WAS WORTH ANY PRICE YOU HAD TO PAY. No day was monotonous, no prospect hopeless, nor was any person wholly a stranger or an enemy.

YOU WERE PARTNERS WITH THE WHOLE HUMAN RACE.

Go out and be partners again! Stop sniffing and snooting and hiding and haggling and peeving and objecting. Go out and share your joy and sorrow, your pride and humiliation, your weariness and wonder, your dreams and delight and despair with every soul you meet—as once you shared mud puddles.

Kick down your self-made barriers. Cut loose from your old self-made shackles. Leave your old person. Be a new person.

Life is waiting—if you'll take a chance.

Just Folks

The Town Booster

In all of my many travels, and I've ridden the rails for miles,
I've noticed in town or in city there is always the man who smiles;
Some one with an eye that twinkles, though humble his place and drear,
And signals the worried stranger that counsel and help are near.

That smile is the same land over. 'Tis friendly and warm and true,
As though Boston and San Francisco the ways of the other knew.
It is seen at the railroad station, it brightens the steamship pier,
As it flashes the cheering message: "Come in, you have nothing to fear."

He may be a red-cap grinning; he may be the man at the gates;
But still at the city's threshold with a welcoming smile he waits;
And I know as I take the highway I'll find at my journey's end
That smiling and kindly stranger, who is willing to be my friend.

Oh, whether it's town or city, the man with the smile is there,
As if the good name of his people had become his particular care.
Though many may pass unheeding, and at strangers the thoughtless frown,
There is always that smiling native to welcome them into town.

Senator Moses Must Be Careful

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for The Boston Evening American.

THE "POLITICAL RECESS" is over, as far as the Hoover Administration is concerned, and Democrats need not take it too seriously henceforth. Senator Moses has had his fling, and the Jahneke of the Administration is to speak again on "The Hoover Administration: A New Chapter in the Record of Republican Service" ! !

The "new chapter" will tell of 8,300,000 men denied the right to earn their daily bread, of 40,000,000 men, women and children in distress, of the greatest flood of bankruptcies and bank failures in American history, of a deficit of $2,000,000,000 in times of peace, of a resulting increase in taxes that will be appalling, of factories closed and foreign markets lost, of bungling in international affairs. The Jahneke of the Administration will have much to talk about.

But Senator Moses, who is a clever man, evidently was indulging in his penchant for irony when he announced that the people, delighted with the "new record," would rise and march like an army with banners, with Mr. Hoover in the lead to a Hoover victory in November.

* * *

Tom Reed Should Have Been a Warning

It is never an easy matter to tell just when Senator Moses is indulging in irony. He is the Bernard Shaw of his party. Sometimes he is subtle; but his reference to the boundless popularity of the President was rather too broad. He was playing for the inward chuckles on the Republican side of the chamber. He likes that sort of thing. We can imagine the scene in the Republican cloakroom afterwards. But he is venturing on dangerous ground.

Familiar as he is with political history, he must realize that irony is a dangerous thing for statesmanship to play with.

Tom Reed loved nothing better than irony, but it probably lost him the Presidency. No one knew when to take him seriously. He realized his mistake too late, and warned aspiring politicians against a reputation for humor. But humorists, like Senator Moses and Will Rogers, cannot resist the temptation to get the transient laugh. To them, it is the cream on the cup.

The Senator could not resist the impulse to refer to the Hoover Administration as singularly successful, making for the prosperity and happiness of a carefree people, knowing that nothing could be better calculated, first to surprise, and then to amuse. But Tom Reed should have been a warning. So many humorists have thus parted with their reputation for sober leadership.

* * *

A Speech Ruined Knott

Many years ago Proctor Knott, of Kentucky, brilliant and solid intellectually, wrecked his career by indulging in just such irony as that of Senator Moses in his reference to the popular acclaim for Mr. Hoover and the fruits of his Administration. The occasion was not vastly important.

It grew out of a bill providing an appropriation for Duluth, then an obscure village which had been given a rather extravagant future. He was against it, but he attacked it with the double-edged weapon of irony. Nothing better in that line has ever been heard in Congress. He tried, with a straight face, to outdo the sponsors of the measure in his rhapsodic tributes to the glories of Duluth; just as Senator Moses sought to outJahneke Jahneke for the sake of the laugh. That speech ruined Knott.

And if the country has not been as much amused by the irony of Moses as with that of Knott, it has been diverted and amused. Perhaps the humor of the Senator was a bit broader than that of the Kentuckian. But it was good humor and everyone enjoyed it. The danger is that Moses may get a reputation as a humorist, which may make it difficult for the public ever to take him seriously again.

A clever man, popular with the press correspondents, we should be sorry to see him go the way of Reed and Knott.

* * *

Mark Twain Was Too Funny

Humor collects its toll of the humorist, and when he seeks to be funny he sometimes makes dreadful blunders.

Take the case of Mark Twain: It was in 1876 when the Republican National Administration was reeking with corruption. Most of the leaders—the President's secretary, three members of his Cabinet, the Vice-President, the chairman of the House Committees on Ways and Means, Appropriations, Judiciary, the Committee on Railroads and Commerce, and a dozen more had been caught red-handed.

It was at that time that Blaine, speaking at Saratoga, put his hand into his high-hat and pulled out—not the Whiskey Ring scandal, not the Credit Mobilier Scandal, not the railroad scandals, not the Navy contract scandal, the Mulligan letters, but a wee bit of a rabbit which scampered about in a tiny corner of the country called Tweed. He was a tiny figure, but he was expected to furnish a hiding for the big and burly figures of the pious leaders of the nation, whose crimes had affected, not the people of a town, but of the entire country. That was the strategy then—in '76.

And that year Mark Twain, good party man, introducing Senator Hawley of Connecticut, who had served as head of the Centennial, made the point that he was unique among national figures in office in that he had handled millions of dollars without stealing any of it. Of course the audience laughed. It was funny and almost entirely true. But after the laugh there was some meditation, and in Republican circles no little consternation, and that ended Mark Twain's services to the Republicans on the stump. He was too funny.

* * *

It Could Have Been Funnier

But, perhaps, we are to have a laughing campaign, for has not the Republican State Committee of New York just adopted resolutions highly laudatory of the success of the Hoover Administration?

In view of the notorious fact that the Republican leaders in New York would give a king's ransom for a way to escape the renomination of this highly successful President, the committee may have been indulging in the same irony as that which we are afraid has injured Senator Moses's reputation for sobriety and truth. But still it is a dangerous indulgence.

However, it could have been funnier. Since the humorists appear to have taken charge of the Hoover campaign, it might have reiterated the pledges and claims of the Hoover managers in that never-to-be-forgotten campaign of 1928.

It might have rejoiced in the President's promised "elimination of poverty" and "a chicken in every pot" and "sanitary plumbing in every home" and "the shortening of the workingman's hours" and "high wages and great dividends."

Perhaps that would have made the humor a bit too broad, but we can't help hoping that the Jahnckes of the Administration will, in purely reminiscent mood, recall these promises, pledges, advertisements in future speeches. If the laugh is what they are after, we can guarantee results.
